

Staying After School Is Fun at Pembroke

Students enjoy staying after school at Pembroke where physical education instructor Bruce Noble conducts an organized program of exercise, games and athletics for them three nights a week in the school gym. Here Jaann Glasser (left) of 2929 Derby and Sharon Miner of 950 Brooklawn, do some figure-building, with Noble. The 23-year-old instructor initiated the program voluntarily, because he feels that children need "directed play" when they leave their school desks, to benefit their physical well-being. Most popular night is the "mixed" night on Tuesdays, when both boys and girls join in square dancing.

Assembly Honors Holy Name Varsity Football Teams

By CAROL ANN JURICA

Holy Name held its second annual assembly Friday in the school gymnasium. The purpose of the assembly was to present awards to the players of the junior varsity and varsity football teams. Martin Foley, coach of the varsity teams; Howard Hughes, coach of the junior varsity squad; Miss Patricia Kennedy, instructor of girls' athletics and supervisor of the cheerleaders; Mother Praxedes, the school principal; Father Schwager; Mr. Edwin C. Walters, chairman of the athletics committee of the Buis' club, and grades five through eight were present. Holy Name letters were given to the boys and handsome certificates were given to those who in earlier seasons had already received letters.

Leon Hart donated four football shoes previously worn by such famous Lions football players as himself, Bobby Layne, Tobin Rote and Joe Schmidt.

The shoes were presented to some of the boys as souvenirs. May I thank Mr. Albert F. Remington and Mr. William H. Gilary for offering their assistance in printing the Holy Name school paper, "Student's Pen" for us.

Kingswood Column

by KRISTINE GILMARTIN

The Kingswood-Cranbrook Student Cabinet gave its annual Christmas party for retarded children in the area Saturday. There was a marionette show, Christmas carols, and Santa Claus (Ozzie Jacobson). His helpers from Kingswood, besides the Cabinet members (Missy Kirk, Julie Allen, Jo Frederickson, Ginny Wood, Miles Cummings, and Starr Walker) were Nancy Tregenza, Kay Levy, Kathy Van Dusen, Karen Gilroy, Peggy Mayne, and Val French. Santa and his helpers gave candy canes to everyone; dolls, dressed by the Kingswood girls, to the little girls; and model airplanes to the boys.

After rehearsals, headaches, and hard work, the music department presented "Christmas at Kingswood School Cranbrook" Sunday evening. The program opened with the "Canticle Noel" beautifully sung by Sallie Garabrant. From the mezzanine, the senior glee club sang, directed by Mrs. Lois Chapman and accompanied by Bernice Lyon at the piano.

Seventh and eighth graders gave "Christmas at Home," a presentation in music and pantomime directed by Mrs. Elaine Clark. The Junior glee club presented "Sir Nut Cracker." The freshman and sophomore dance group, directed by Miss Ruth Furstenberg, added color and beauty to the music. Christine Norvell danced the solo of the Sugar Plum Fairy.

Staging was done by Miss Julia Koestering of the speech department and the costumes by Mrs. Herman J. Linn.

It's Christmas time everywhere, but especially in the dormitory at Kingswood. There was a special dinner, served by candlelight, on Tuesday evening, the day before school was dismissed.

Saturday night stockings were hung on doors in hopes that the Dorm Council would fill them with goodies—which they did. Sunday breakfast was served in the lounge to the accompaniment of Christmas carols played by Miss Bertha Siefert. The girls gave Miss Siefert her present on Wednesday morning—a gift certificate for flowers for the dormitory each month. They also gave the dorm its present—a new toaster for the kitchenette.

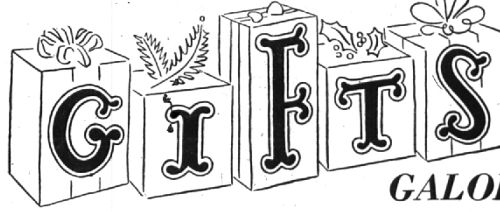

The first of the Christmas parties was given Wednesday by
