

STOPPING TO ENJOY the snow after school last Thursday are five-year-old Peter Ruehle and Roxanne Galley. They are two of the five children who turned out for Mrs. Phyllis Johnson's morning kindergarten at Baldwin school the morning after last week's snowstorm. Class normally consists of 25 children.

Invite Public To Attend JA Open House

During the observance of Junior Achievement Week Jan. 27-Feb. 2 the Birmingham JA business center at 177 S. Woodward extends an invitation on behalf of its teenage members to drop in and see these neighborhood teenage corporations in actual operation.

Business center hours are from 7-9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Purpose of JA Week is to familiarize the work of JA and its teenage "miniature corporations" by holding Open House at all of S. E. Michigan's 14 business centers. In the past, the general public has demonstrated its interest in JA and its activities at its open house.

JA is a non-profit organization designed to give America's teenagers a better understanding of the free-enterprise system. It is sometimes called a business educational program, which it is.

TEENAGERS in JA form their own companies and elect their own officers. Products are designed and actually manufactured in a JA Business Center "work shop."

Professional in quality and appearance, JA products find their way into large department stores, retail shops, etc., to take their place among "big business" products.

A complete life cycle of a corporation from its formation to liquidation is experienced by these miniature JA corporations, from October through May of the following year.
