LATHRUP—The $39,823.15 1957 paving program was approved by council Monday after a three-hour public hearing in which only two of the nine projects were in danger of being dropped.

These two districts are Roseland and Blackstone to Bloomfield and Guy Place from Roseland to 12 Mile road.

Roseland, Lakota, 18244 Roseland, who also owns frontage on Guy Place, questioned the method of paving the two districts. Lakota, who circulated petitions for the two paving districts, said his

Quit Claim Deed Showdown Asked

LATHRUP—A showdown on the not-so-quick quit claim deed to other houses was asked by Mayor Lantz L. Mackey by July 15.

In the hopper for over a year, the deed, which would assure the city of control over city sewers, has been delayed by a difference over wording.

City Attorney Everett F. Hayes is negotiating with the city lawyers of the Charles D. Kelleys who had the original sewer installed.

Knee-Deep in Mud

HENRY L. ZIFF, 3590 Berkshire drive, the Berkshires, stands in knee-high mud and water runoff during Monday morning's storm flooded his basement. The picture was just one of many items found either floating or sunken after the flood. The dark area indicates the high water mark—which at its peak reached a depth of nearly four feet.

Houses reflect the personalities of the owners.

There's a tiny house on the corner of German Mill road and Kuylenstierna that has mirrored so many different owners in the past 15 years that even the shingles must be schizophrenic. This hapless little domicile has really had its ups and downs.

With its ancient footings securely in the ground, the little house has bravely faced the gleeful onslaught of a half-dozen amateur contractors, and comes smiling and freshly painted every time.

The current face lifting is in the hands of a very newly married couple, Carol and Grove Ryley. So urgent about undoing and redoing what their predecessors had done, they cut a Jamaican honeymoon shore to resume their remodeling job. Married June 22, the Ryleys hope to have their version of the white cottage to be pretty habitable this week. Since they will live in a neighborhood where every other house has undergone a similar metamorphosis, they are at liberty to pursue the project far into the night, with no one complaining. Even the dogs are indifferent to the sound of sawing and hammering, an falling off a ladder or only bring a curiously glance of compassion from the veterans on the street.

It is with Vendor-Root Company's Detroit office and hail from Toledo, Ohio, and they met at school in Tropic, N. Y.

Just about the time local residents were resigning to travel into Birmingham if they wanted to see some fireworks on the Fourth, the Ryleys and their guests from the Benjamin Schwader lawn on Fairway drive, a strong wind carried the festive lights over the township line and in minutes approaches to the Schwader estate. The guests were disappointed in ecstatic children and grateful parents who enjoyed the reprieve from a party in a more congenial neighborhood. The Schwaders had planned the display as a fitting climax to a picnic for many guests who had the "breezy" view of the waterfront finale.

Marcia Worley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Worley of thirteen Mile road, is using her prowess as a prize winning pianist for teaching and counseling at Camp Bryn Afon near Rhineland, Wis., this summer. She was picked up by a Volkswagen bus which originated from Washington, D. C. with the young lady, a British ambassador and the daughter of the Norwegian ambassador. Mrs. Schwader also planned the camp. She expects to spend seven weeks there.

Sue Polhemus, a June Birmingham high school graduate, is also camp counseling in Wisconsin. This summer after she spends a week with her sister in Denver, Colo., she will be in camp.

Frances replaced bathing suits Friday night when temperatures cooled. The swimming pool at the Quint pool was attractive than when invitations to 30 Colony Hill neighbors were issued.

Nevertheless, the grilled cornish game hens disappeared on a schedule and jokers, horseshoes and bridge proved good substitutes for swimming on a chilly night.

The long, long weekend provided families with opportunities to make short trips.

The Newtons of Woodside visited Mrs. Cole's parents in Sheridan, Ind., over the Fourth.

Two Circles Plan Meets Next Week

FRANKLIN—Friendly circle members will meet at the community church at noon Wednesday and at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. A. V. Doub, 6968 Dandeean Blvd., Pontiac, for a potluck luncheon.

Mrs. Wyn Hinman will assist the hostess.

Husbands and wives of the food will be brought to the Evening circle's annual potluck supper to be held at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Art Carly on Wing Lake road.

Following the 6:30 p. m. supper, the group will see the Will-O-Way production of "Bus Stop."

Bingham Farms Social Briefs

The John Reinhardt family, also of Bristol Lane has returned from a five-day holiday in New York. It was a sight-seeing trip for sons, John and Jay.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones of Telegraph have ordered special perch from East Texas for a fish fry Friday to be held at a special party in their pool. Neighborhood guests are keeping their fingers crossed for good weather.

The James Washburns and the Thelma Helms, neighbors on Thirteen Mile road, combined families for the Fourth and held a party at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Art Carly on Wing Lake road.

Fortunately, things got off to an early start when the rain stopped before having to adjourn indoors.

It's quite a combination when you think it poses for the high poetic and ponies for the high spirit.

W. Bloomfield Demonstrates CD Readiness

Five-hundred chicken dinners were served to some 400 guests and 100 workers in the Civilian Defense center in the afternoon at the West Bloomfield high school by the West Bloomfield Civilian Defense group.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Anderson of Gross Pointe, Mr. and Mrs. Conley B. Hampton of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Crockett of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Grissom of Wing Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milburn of Westwood Manor.

before any equipment for building works. The ordinance also provides that if new drains or culverts are deemed necessary on existing drains, homeowners will be required to assume the cost of installing them.

POOR DRAINAGE conditions are causing a great deal of trouble because asphalt driveways are obstructing the natural flow. Residents have also been landscaping to the road, creating bad drainage. The new law makes remedying of poor drainage a mandatory requirement.

Don Egbert, chief of the water authority, appeared upon invitation of the council to informally discuss the village's position in the present public water supply program.

Private Air Strips Outside Township Control Says Swem

SOUTHFIELD—The township has no control over landing fields used as private, non-profit-airplane landing strips, Supervisor Eugene Swem told Township Attorney Harry N. Dell as saying.

Residents of the Nine Mile-Tel-egraph-Beach area have petitioned the township for some action which would prevent airplane owners from using Blue Grass Farms area as a landing field.

"A lawful operation that has been claimed a nuisance," said Swem.
