

Dads Breakfast With Daughters At Barnum

Breakfast for their fathers and an international dinner were on last week's agenda for Barnum junior high school cooking classes of Miss Nancy Daniels in the home economics department. Cooks were at school at 7 a.m. Monday to prepare breakfast for the fathers of girls in eighth grade homeroom 226. The girls secured a copy of the morning paper for each dad's entertainment. They devised a guessing game in which each girl acted out some item her father frequently forgets mornings. TUESDAY'S INTERNATIONAL dinner hostesses invited special guests from foreign lands to enjoy their 4 p.m. meal prepared by the ninth grade cooking classes. Approximately 20 girls in the class worked in units, preparing Swedish, Japanese, Hawaiian, Italian and Canadian food. Guests from foreign lands were Koji Ohsaki, from the Philippines, and Miss E. Oshia, Hawaiian-born Japanese. Other guests were Mrs. Taylor Cass, Fred Smith, Mrs. J. J. Hurd, Mrs. Arthur Schaeffer, Mrs. R. Bush.

A short service was held on Thursday at 2:30 marking Cranbrook's observance of Memorial day. It included a talk by Mr. Perry Wise, president of the Cranbrook Alumni association. Mr. Young officiated. A wreath was placed at the base of the Cranbrook memorial plaque by Mrs. John Gillette, Jr., whose son was killed in an Air Force training mishap during World War II. Bob Schultz sounded taps to end the service. The American Field Service foreign student program will be continued next year, when Christian Emil Stoud Platon becomes Cranbrook's second AFS scholar. Platon's main interests are found in sports and current affairs. He has for many years

Barnum Girls To Give Paintings To Their School

Two oil paintings are being viewed with pride by a group of Barnum junior high school girls. The pictures are part of an exhibition at the Bloomfield art association galleries this week. The exhibit of the Birmingham Society of Women Painters opened Sunday and continues for one week. The Barnum girls are members of B-Hi, the school girls' athletic association, and the water ballet club. They purchased the two paintings from their "B-Hi" treasury and water ballet profits. When this week's exhibition ends, the paintings will be taken to Barnum junior high school, where they will be presented to the school at a recognition assembly. Jane McKinley, water ballet president, and Emily Minor, B-Hi president, will make the presentation. The two girls assisted in selection of the paintings, along with Student Congress President Jeanne Phillips, Mrs. Jane Foster, gym teacher, and Miss Jean Clark, art teacher.
