glee club at the Birmingham high school choir's 19th annual spring concert next Thursday night. The A-1 rated choir will sing everything from pop to Bach, under direction of Victor Ulrich, at 8 p.m. in the high school gym. Geraldine Barber will be accompanist.

Monday was the first day of school after a three day weekend for the Bloomfield school system. Occasion for Friday off was the annual schoolmaster's day at Ann Arbor. Elementary students were off, too, as their teachers had a workshop at Vaughan school.

For the past two weeks, the seventh and eighth graders have been having eye tests. If any difficulty in a student's vision is found, he is referred to his own eye specialist.

Election for officers of next year's junior high student council will be finished by tomorrow. The president, Martin Sloan and the secretary, Valerie Hart, have been chosen from students at Bloomfield, while the other officers will come from the sixth grades.

Monday an all school assembly was held during the eighth hour. A representative from General Electric showed the "House of Magic," including many amazing and extremely modern appliances for the home.

The most recent senior student council meeting was to discuss amendments to the constitution. One change that was discovered necessary was to have each grade send three representatives next year instead of only two. This is to be done because of increasing enrollment.

Tuesday evening was the annual Junior-Senior banquet. It was held at the Birmingham country club. Speakers were Dave Drury, senior class president; John Duncan, junior president; Mr. Richard Spies, principal and Mr. Eugene Johnson, Superintendent.

Dateline: Derby

Also Diane Downey, Bob Morrison, Emily Minor, Mike Miles, Jackie Paulus, Ron Corrella, Sue Schaefer, and Bill Ploch.

The party was held at the home of Judy and Joan Reilly, and ninth graders attended from Derby and Barnum.

Speeches by the candidates running for student council offices were made early this week, in an assembly for all seventh and eighth graders. The final votes will be cast tomorrow for next semester's student council officers.

Also tomorrow, Derby's spring dance will be held. It is named the "See Mit."

230 BHS Students Represent 70 Nations at BUNA

Representing 40 nations, 230 Birmingham high school students convened for their second annual Birmingham United Nations Assembly, or BUNA, Tuesday.

Participating students are members of the high school's active group, the Birmingham United Nations association. They had been preparing their nations' cases since February.

Secretary-General Janet McDonald called the second annual session to order, introducing Steve Pew, president of the general assembly.

BUNA REPRESENTATIVES were excused from the day's classes to meet with the general assembly to order, introducing Steve Pew, president of the general assembly.

Subjects on which students had been determining their countries' positions were the Middle East-Suez question, disarmament, and Hungarian independence.

Other officers of the high school's BUNA group are Ellen Rossett, secretary for the general assembly; Sue Ketchum, secretary of the security council; Dory

Rodgers, president of the security council.

George Pappas, civics and international relations teacher, is BUNA advisor. Pappas said more than twice the number of students in last year's BUNA participated in this year's event.
