

Sing for Their Summer

Taking advantage of a sunshiny day last week, three participants in next summer's choral clinic got into the mood of Bloomfield Hills high school's summer sessions. Directing them is the school's choral director, Clarence Luchtman, who will be one of the summer clinic's directors, along with Don Large of WJR. From left, BHHS vocalists are Anne Shaak, Ellen Martz and Mary Lou Darnell. They'll be among the approximately 30 clinic participants who will study tone and voice techniques, give individual and ensemble performances, and observe top-flight soloists, choruses and dramatic acts at area summer theatres. The June 19-July 3 clinic is open to all area high school students, who may contact Luchtman at the high school for information.

Southfield High Notes

By MARGARET GRAY

Last Thursday a big campaign assembly was held for the student council elections. Some 14 people were running for the four offices, and the competition was keener than it has been for some time. Friday students voted in their English classes on the voting machine, and the winners of the election for '57-58 are Todd Grant, senior president; Dave Marsh, junior, vice president; Priscilla Johnson, junior, secretary, and Dana Douglas, senior, treasurer.

If you mention the word "motor" around a physics student, it will ring a bell. All students are required to build a metric motor that will run. Most of the girls find this a tremendous challenge (or their fathers do, anyway).

The speech students have been working on radio programs, each of the four classes are making 1-1/2 hours of radio tape. Each regular 1/2 hour program is cut down to ten minutes, and the 15 minute programs are cut down to five minutes. When the broadcasts are ready they are played during home room periods. They feature all types of programs, a newscast, a children's program, disc jockey, humorous interview, station breaks, etc. The tapes represent many hours of hard work, and each speech student is relieved that the taping is over.

Club funds, either donations or loans, have helped purchase for Southfield high school a Vari-Typer machine. The machine will be used to set up the school paper and various programs. Students learning to use the Vari-Typer have an opportunity to increase their earning capacity in the business world.

The school Vocal Music Group and the Student Council loaned money toward its purchase. Donations were given by the Southfield Theatians, the Debate club, the Library group, and the Journalism club. Other school clubs are planning to purchase type fonts to use on the machine.

Southfield high school will hold its extra curricular activity convocations assembly tomorrow morning in the school gym. Featured speaker of the assembly will be Gary Evans.

At the assembly only seniors will receive academic honors, but extra curricular awards will be presented to students from all classes. Still a secret, and only to be announced the day of the assembly are the recipients of the Principal's award, the PTSA award, the Four Corner Press award and the Kiwanis award.

Southfield's senior trip did not have a very pleasant start in the rain Sunday afternoon, but no one doubted that the cheerful boatload would find a little sunshine somewhere along the way. Faculty members accompanying the senior class were Mr. and Mrs. Marinus Van-Ameyde, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Steinke, Mr. and Mrs. Beurmann Brubaker, Miss Nancy Glanz, Miss Mary Lou Lake, Miss Grace Brown and Ken Hull.

Time Inc. Head To Address Grads At Cranbrook

CRANBROOK—Roy E. Larsen, president of Time Inc., will deliver the commencement address to the senior class of Cranbrook school Saturday morning, June 8, in Christ Church Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills. The address will follow the awarding of diplomas to 77 graduates by Cranbrook's headmaster Harry D. Hoey. In addition to his publishing work, Larsen has been active in the educational field for many years. He has been associated with Time Inc. since 1922. In 1929 he succeeded Henry R. Luce as president and editor-in-chief of the publishing company.
