

Feeding Stations Attract Birds Galore, Even Ducks

The Harry Siegels of Butternut Hill drive, Pine Hill, entertained 25 at dinner on Mother's day, honoring Mrs. Siegel's 82-year-old mother, Mrs. J. W. Tindler, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

It had been 10 years since Mrs. Tindler had been reunited with all her children at one time. Those present were the James Adena of Salamauo, the J. K. Tindler, and the children of Flint, the M. A. Tinders and children of Detroit, Mrs. Clara Vandellon and daughter, and the Robert Siegels of Royal Oak. Mrs. Tindler will be visiting here until the fall.

The Harry Siegels are anxiously crossing off the days of May on the calendar as on the 25th, their son, Charles T., will be returning home. He has been in training with the Marines since January 17 and has recently completed his boot training. His next assignment is not yet known.

There is a rich reward in store for those who feed the birds, as Mrs. Frank Gauntt of Weather-vane road, Thornwood, will tell you.

After moving into their new home a year ago, they noticed there wasn't a bird of any kind in the subdivision, and felt the birds were probably driven away by all the building that has been going on for many months. As a result, they put out four feeding stations last winter.

Since then, many birds have been attracted. Included are chickadees, bluebirds, robins, sparrows, goldfinches, nuthatches, Baltimore Orioles, bronzed grackles, grins, starlings, rewinged blackbirds and cardinals. A pair of ring-necked mallard ducks have also been making calls on the Gauntts, and much to their astonishment, a raccoon sauntered by the other day carrying a young coon. Next on the Gauntts agenda are bird baths and bird houses.

The Osage garden club is holding its second annual plant sale on Saturday, May 25, at the home of Mrs. A. P. Ulbrich, of 5870 Sussex road, located east of North Adams and north of Long Lake roads.

The sale will include flats of petunias, salvia, marigolds and a great many other varieties. There will also be vegetable plants. Orders will be taken by Mrs. Ulbrich anytime before the sale and can be picked up on May 25.

Entertaining at a luncheon and bridge on Tuesday, May 14, the Edgewood Country club, were co-hostesses Mrs. Alvin Robinson of North Adams and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harley J. Robinson of Bloomfield Hills. The honor guest was Mrs. Clem Robinson of Irvington, Ind., who has been a house-guest of Dr. and Mrs. Harley Robinson.

The luncheon table was centered with an attractive arrangement of spring flowers. Attending from Birmingham were Mrs. Walter Sherman and Mrs. Gordon Johnston. From Bloomfield Hills were Mrs. Miner Roll, and from Christen Hills, Mrs. Lauren Van Nortwick. Other guests arrived from Royal Oak, Lathrup and Ann Arbor.

The Alvin Robinsons have been busy enjoying their new home on North Adams road. Mr. Robinson is president and owner of Allied Steel Sales, Detroit.

The Robinsons are avid bowlers and golfers and belong to Edgewood country club. Bird hunting ranks high on Mr. Robinson's sport and hobby list.

In the bowling finals last Wednesday, the 29th Century took first place and the Bloomfield Junior House league second place. Both teams are now eligible for the "Champion of Champions" which will be scheduled in the near future.

Mrs. Alvin Robinson of North Adams is captain of the Bloomfield Junior House league and the Louis Deak of Pine Hill drive is anchor man. The teams have been meeting each Wednesday afternoon throughout the season.

Before attending the Newcomers dinner club at the Pontiac country club May 11, a group of North Adams residents attended a cocktail party for 40 at the home of the Reilly Meads of Birwood, Birmingham.

The Meads' recreation room carries out a nautical motif, with mermaids kissing fish, sails strung up as windbreakers, lamps in the form of fire extinguishers and miniature nets with bobbing hung on the walls. The room is prepped as "Reilly Isle" and gives an illusion of being on board a ship that has been wrecked.

This room has become a hobby of the Meads, who have done all creating and work themselves from old relics they have picked up in their travels. Attending from North Adams were the Bruce Butlers, the John Farleys, the Wendell Butlers, and the Marvin Olsons.

The Clifford Mohrns of Haines invited a group of 22 back to their home for scrambled eggs, coffee

The newcomers club held a fashion show luncheon at the Community House last Thursday afternoon with North Adams well represented. Tiny orchids were flown in from Hawaii for the occasion.

The fashion show was entitled "Clockwise" Fashions with the hands of a large clock being moved as different models appeared. Davidson, Jr., of Davidson, put on the show. Modeling were Mrs. John Hoey, Jr., Mrs. Robert Holt, Mrs. Arthur Staley, Mrs. Wendell Butler and Mrs. Bruce Butcher, all of the North Adams area.

The James Huggins, formerly of Detroit, are newcomers to Westchester, Eastover Farms. Their children are Patricia, 12, June, 10, Bill, 7, and are pupils of Eastover school. At home are Don, 4, and Mary, 6 months.

Huggins is in the styling department of Chrysler corporation. Cab Scouts of Pack B-34 held their last indoor pack meeting of the season at the Pembroke school gym, May 13.

Games, songs and awards filled the evening bill. Guest speaker, Robert Dolmage of the Troy fire department, held the Cubs spell-bound with an interesting talk on fire safety.

The Cub Scouts' annual picnic is slated for Saturday, June 15.

Craig Jones, son of the George Jones of Dowling road, celebrated his seventh birthday May 11, with a party. His little guests included the entire first grade class of Eastover school.

The George Jones and son, Craig, of Dowling road have recently returned from ten days at Key Biscayne, Fla., an island southeast of the city of Miami.

During their stay they motored to Vero Beach and Lake Wales, Fla., where they spent a few days fishing. They also visited Bok Tower Cypress Gardens and the Miami aquarium before flying home.

Dressed in the formal black academic cap and gown, Denise Gull where they spent a few days fishing. They also visited Bok Tower Cypress Gardens and the Miami aquarium before flying home.

met, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gullmet of Riverside drive, Birmingham, became a member of the Margrove college Sodality during recent ceremonies in the college chapel.

Birthdays, anniversaries, guests virals, parties are all news-called the society editor about them.
