

Three Franklin Families Host Foreign Students

FRANKLIN—International week at U of M had pleasant reverberations as far as Franklin, last weekend.

Three Franklin families hosted a foreign student for 24 hours, from Saturday to Sunday afternoon, with the unanimous conclusion that it was "just wonderful for our families."

Paul Robertsons of Franklin Hills drive, who incidentally have six children of their own, hosted an Australian student, who is in Ann Arbor on a Fulbright scholarship.

A child psychologist from Melbourne, Mrs. Eleanor Werthien, was the Robertson's guest.

From Cambridge, England, Ian Scarbrick, a nuclear engineer, was guest of the Eugene Kelly family on Redfern. Although it was suggested the young student do more casual attire for his weekend in the country, he dryly remarked, "Americans seem to think the English are so formal, I feel it's expected of me to preserve that impression."

AT THE PRESTON Dozier home on Willowgrove, a spell was being cast by a tall handsome German student, Andreas Jerusalem, who appeared very shy until he was introduced to Bettie Mueller, a German visitor, living with the Charles Petersons on Lansing.

In minutes the two learned their families were good friends in Germany and they enjoyed a long conversation in their native tongue which was obviously a genuine treat for the young people.

The hosting families were carefully instructed to carry on normal weekend routines so that the visitors could have an opportunity to learn about American family life without superficial plans.

IN ALL THESE CASES, the Franklin families found the experience most rewarding. Language was little or no problem, and their visitors' appreciation and manners proved to be a delightful example for youngsters in a ch. home.

The total experience was reported to be so enjoyable that plans are being laid already for borrowing more students from faraway lands for Thanksgiving.
