WING LAKE—Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Buss, who recently returned from a trip around the world by air, have been awarded medals by Pan American airlines for flying across the international date line Oct. 24 while enroute from Japan to Hawaii.

But Doug and Evall have more to remember than the certificates for on this flight, they were aboard the "Romance of the Seas," the strato-cruiser that disappeared in the Pacific Nov. 8, just two weeks after they were on it.

The name of the plane appears on the certificates which, in years to come, will no doubt remain a greater impression on their memory than the statement... "That by so crossing this divider of days, the Today of mortals at once becomes yesterday and all is confusion."

How true this statement was for these 44 passengers aboard the plane that fateful day.
