Franklin Social Briefs

Thursday morning, Mrs. Lloyd Greenleaf entertained the women who will be working with her in the district 4 area of the Franklin-Meadowdale division for the United Foundation drive.

Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Richard Flury of Carol gave a luncheon to acquaint her group of UF volunteers with each other.

Moving soon will be the Paul Kanold's of Carol road who have lived here for 19 1/2 years. Transferred to the east, they expect to make Rochester, N.Y. their home and once again resume old friendships in and around Boston, from whence they came.

Kanold has contributed much to the community in nearly two decades. A principle investigator of scout hunting, he has also served as chairman of the planning commission and noting board of appeals. Mrs. Kanold has been active with the Franklin WNFGA group from its inception.

Mrs. and Mr. John Faulkner of Irving road returned Monday from a flying trip to Palm Spring, Los Angeles, Calif. Looking after things while they were gone was Mrs. J. Faulkner of Dearborn, Paul's grandmother to Janice and John.

Autumn colors ranging from deep purples to brilliant yellows made the tedious job of cottage hunting an exciting one for the Paul Galters of N. Greenbriar who spent last weekend at their summer home on Torch lake.

For the Lloyd Greenleafs, too, nature's splendor took the edge off a disappointing hunting trip near East Tuscarora. Ardege nimbos and arrow style, they rose each morning before dawn to sight deer but bagged none.

Aprons and Christmas decorations, stock items for any successful church bazaar, will be given undivided attention every Tuesday and Wednesday at work meetings held at the Franklin Community Church by the Women's Circles. Tuesday there will be an apron bee with production line methods utilized to turn out sufficient quantities for the Dec. 7 deadline.

On Wednesday's Mrs. Robert Swift will hold a workshop on Christmas decorations, complete with ready-made ideas and materials.

THE STATE POLICE alerted the Southfield police and they in turn called the Franklin humbly.

Within three minutes there were two state police, two Southfield and three Franklin police cars in the Greenbriar and a very dramatic scene unfolded.

Mrs. Conrad, who was severely working in her yard.

It may have been ill-illuded hoar or maybe someone was really in trouble and in their excitement, they called the wrong number.

This much is certain, the combined forces of protection are well co-ordinated and function efficiently, which should be a comforting thought to residents in sparsely populated areas.
