Court

Birmingham high school civics teachers Robert Richards and George B. Miller instructed the jurors on traffic laws and the court's procedure. They are selected by lot from the students in the high school's civics classes.

Schaule said about 20 students would serve on the court at future monthly sessions. From each 20, ten will continue on and ten will be replaced monthly. Schaule expects court officers from the group which will report to him before each session.

DEFENDANTS MAY appeal the court's decisions to circuit court. Penalties range from reformation and compulsory attendance at the driver clinic to referral on official license suspension for as long as a year.

As Tuesday's session ended, Judge Moore urged jurors to talk about the court at school, but cautioned them not to disclose names of defendants.

Availability of funds to transport six handicapped children to special classes outside the school district was discussed by the Birmingham board of education Tuesday night.

Association for handicapped children representatives told the board the advantages of such a program.

The board agreed to explore more details of transporting the children, then decide at its November meeting.

Many school areas, some in Oakland county, are now performing this service. However, it is up to a school board's discretion whether or not it will transport the children.

The board also agreed to pay one-half the cost of a traffic signal at the school crossing on 15 Mile and Fairfax, provided Southfield township will pay the other half plus maintenance cost.

It also was decided to continue the Saturday driver education classes with the same $4 per hour rates as last year.

"I think you are doing a wonderful job," the judge told the jurors.
