

Can it be true that one reason so many people fail to develop and maintain "an open mind" is because, these days, living is too superficial to allow the deeper capacities of mind to function. There seems to be so little time when environment is removed from the thrills of each day.

IFYE Tea at Fairlane

Speakers, flowers, displays and music will carry out an international theme when the annual International Farm Youth Exchange tea taken place Oct. 18. Open to the public, the tea is sponsored by some 77 Michigan branches of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association. It will be at Fairlane, Dearborn, with duplicate programs at 2 and 3 p.m.

Mrs. F. G. Garrison of Franklin, general chairman, said today that one of the outstanding features of the program will be the panel made up of four who have taken part in the IFYE plan.

Mrs. Garrison, who will moderate the panel, said an additional feature will be the appearance of the first adult exchange, a woman visiting this country from Scotland.

Birmingham's Part

Besides being entertained by Mrs. H. Earl Hanson of Coral Gables, Lathrup, president of the Michigan division of WNFGA, Mrs. F. Gordon Davis of the Birmingham branch, plans to do a tea table in the Scotch theme to honor the visitor, Mrs. Edward Samut has also consented to make an arrangement, Mrs. William McCallum is among those specially invited to pour.

Others serving from the Birmingham branch are Mrs. George Dixon, publicity, and Mrs. Dhlive Langlois, tickets. Since everything is donated, each group is also responsible for portions of food. Assisting Mrs. Carl Abbott with this task will be Mrs. Raymond Giffels, Mrs. Nelson Miles, Mrs. Shelton Marston, Mrs. Charles Davidson, Mrs. Fred Seghers and Mrs. Carman Adams.

Bloomfield Hills Will Receive

Mrs. James R. Longwell of the Bloomfield Hills branch is planning the reception. Invitations have been sent to 23 foreign consuls serving in the state who, with their wives, are to be in the reception line.

Others from the Hills branch assisting Mrs. Longwell are Mrs. A. H. Meyer, Mrs. Marcus Cunningham, Miss Josephine Collins, Mrs. Vernon G. Genn and Mrs. L. Raymond Twyman.

Mrs. Cunningham also plans to make an arrangement representative of Guatemala.

Osage Will Be There Too!

At least 22 members of the Osage branch plan to attend the tea where there will be a display of bulbs from Holland and an Italian exhibit. A wandering troubadour, playing music of several nations, will accent the international tone.

Member of the Osage branch feel it is their opportunity to further the good international relationship that is so vital if world peace is to ever be attained.

What the Tea Will Do

The tea will benefit the IFYE program which sends young men and women from the 4-H clubs of America to foreign countries, and assist exchanges from abroad who are visiting this country.

Those chosen from among our 4-H clubs have proven themselves to be outstanding as leaders and must meet rigid requirements before they are approved.

They go to foreign nations where they become "members" of selected families. They take part in the family life, work and play, sharing experiences with their hosts, and telling of the life here.

In return, young people of the same interests, come to this country on the same basis.

The IFYE program is supported entirely through such things as this annual tea and voluntary contributions.

Modeling Is New Venture, It Happened Over Night

By VIRGINIA COLE

A brand new world has opened up for Lynn Ivey, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morcom Ivey of Old Trinity court.

Around the first of September, Lynn and her mother were eating in a North Woodward restaurant one evening when one of two men sitting close by came over and spoke to Mrs. Ivey, asking her if her daughter had ever done any professional modeling.

AS A RESULT of this encounter, Lynn was engaged by these gentlemen, who are here from New York with Filmway Corp., to make television commercials for Libby-Owen Ford Glass company.

Finding her not only naturally photogenic but very relaxed and natural to pose, they have used her in the filming of the 1958 Pontiac car, both at the GM Technical Center and at the GM proving grounds. This commercial will appear with the Perry Mason show and with all the NCAA football broadcasts, beginning about mid-November on the coast to coast network.

FINDING her to be such a natural model, these gentlemen recommended her to Detroit model agencies with whom they have worked for years and already they have contacted her and she has done some millinery and fashion modeling. As it looks now, her future possibilities in this field are unlimited.

With all of this happening to her in the past month, most any young lady would be riding on a pink cloud by this time. But not Lynn, she's just the calm, unaffected, wholesome American girl-type that attracted them to her in the first place.

They say that often they spend hours trying to get the natural, relaxed poses from their trained New York models that they can get in one shooting of Lynn.

A BIT OF IRONY creeps into this situation that has become quite a joke in the Ivey home. Her daddy has been in the advertising business for years and is at present with McManis, John and Adams. Many times he has frantically sought just such a model, little realizing that there was one in his own home.

Lynn is fascinated with the work and would love to continue. She is in the eighth grade at Bloomfield junior high and is very active in many school activities, the latest of which is the appointment by her English teacher to write the junior high school news of Bloomfield for The Eccentric.

Posing Comes Natural

Being a wholesome All-American girl has will appear on all the NCAA football broadcast beginning about mid-November on the Ivey-modeling for TV commercials. She coast to coast network.

THEIR CURRENT production is called "Jamal and the Golden Dates" and is the story of a pottery vessel who comes to life to help a small boy.

The small stage used rod puppets and is popular with the younger children for birthday parties, small gatherings and in the classroom. Three available productions are "The Little Nightingale", "The Little Pig", and "Jack in the Beanstalk".

Also on the agenda for Tuesday evening is an informal talk by Mrs. James Scribner of Birmingham.

ham about her summer experience working with the Birmingham Recreation Department.

TWO OTHER active members, Mrs. John May and Mrs. E. M. Kuehl are working with Mrs. Jones' sixth grade at Penbrook school. The children are learning to construct puppets and will culminate their learning in a show for their school mates.

Various phases of puppetry include the construction and working of puppets, painting scenery, writing scripts, acting as looking agents and transporting the stage to various churches, schools and hospitals.

Mrs. Donald Howarth, 687 Oakland, Birmingham, is in charge of membership.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of the University of Michigan. The new Mrs. Nichols was affiliated with the Phi Beta Phi sorority and her husband with the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

French Pianist Opens C'brook Music Season

Cranbrook Music Guild will present its first concert of the season Tuesday, Oct. 29, at Cranbrook House at 8:30 p.m. with the brilliant young French pianist Philippe Entremont.

According to Mrs. Gunnar Karlstrom, the board of Cranbrook Music Guild feels that the advisory board, headed by Mrs. Walker A. Williams, has been fortunate in securing Mr. Entremont to open the season.

WHEN MR. ENTREMONT appeared with the Philadelphia orchestra last year, Time Magazine reported, quote: "A talent as impressive as the late William Kapell's speed, big tone, a sense of soul, fair. Entremont played with a momentum that swept all before him. When the final notes faded, there was a roar of approval. The orchestra refused to share the pianist's award, simply sat tight and applauded too."

This year the young, dynamic Frenchman returns for a fourth American tour opening in New York with the Philharmonic orchestra Oct. 19.

Frederick G. Weed is president of Cranbrook Music Guild and Mrs. Walter F. Skinner heads this year's advisory committee together with Clyde R. Crane, Jr., George Wessels, Mrs. Walker A. Williams, Mrs. Frank Wendt and Mrs. Syver K. Thingstad.
