Admiring Star's Gown

"Abduction" from Seraglio Featured at Saturday Matinee

Recognized as the future grand opera audience and support, the teen-agers of Birmingham and suburban areas are showing a solid front of enthusiasm for this season's presentations by the New York City Opera company, under the auspices of Detroit Grand Opera association.

Opening with Faust on November 19, they will play to capacity audiences through Nov. 22. A goodly percent of this audience will be the teen-agers.

GENERAL CHAIRMAN this year is Mrs. James B. Wilber of Gross Point with Mrs. Walker A. Williams of N. Glenngary, Bloomfield Village as co-chairman.

Mrs. William Moore and Mrs. Barney Clark are co-chairmen of school promotion of ticket sales. They have had wonderful cooperation from the mothers and teachers in all of the schools and are overwhelmed with the genuine enthusiasm of the students.

For the past three years the interest in the schools has been developing until this year there will be actual caravans of busloads of students attending the Saturday matinee of the "Abduction" from Seraglio.

MRS. CLARK and Mrs. Moore are speaking in the various schools throughout this area and Monday Mrs. Williams spoke to the Junior high and High schools of Gross Point and found their enthusiasm most gratifying.

For the most part they seem to favor Faust, Merry Widow, Fledermaus and the "Abduction" from Seraglio.

The New York Opera company, now playing to long sold out capacity crowds in New York has had to extend its season there for one week, by popular demand.

Detroit is honoring the privilege of entertaining this outstanding opera company by its gratifying response in the anticipation of the Saturday matinee of the "Abduction" from Seraglio.

Tickets will go on sale in the schools Nov. 5 and 6.
