

Putting off until tomorrow what one should do today is a weakness that has destroyed the personal lives of untold millions of people in every age. Procrastination breeds upon itself. No matter how hard you try to write down the one that has been postponed, do it NOW... before NOW becomes NEVER.

Mantilla Accents Bridal Attire

A chapel length mantilla of heirloom Brussels lace was worn by Joanne Mae Pedder for her marriage to William Gordon Fox. The Rev. Lester L. Dobyms read the rites at 4:30 p.m. Saturday in Christ Church Cranbrook.

Joanne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Pedder of Berwyn road. William is the son of Mrs. Stuart K. Fox of Wilmette, Ill., and the late Mr. Fox.

The bride wore an ivory Italian silk peau de soie gown with tiny covered buttons on fitted braided length sleeves. The rounded neckline was appliqued in hand corded alencon lace and with motifs of pearls. Garlands of hand corded lace extended to the hem of the princess line floor length skirt, fashioned with a bustle back and chapel train. She carried white roses, stephanotis and gardenias.

JEANNE Pedder was her sister's maid of honor in a waist-length royal blue taffeta frock with a fitted cummerbund draped to back panels. In her hair she wore a matching velvet band and carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, mums and bachelor buttons.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Lutz, Mrs. Robert Thalacker, Mrs. David Gilchrist, Lois Moore, Frances Dawson, Mrs. Lawrence Williams, Mrs. Robert Ely, Catherine Barnes and Julia Gorham.

The maids wore frocks identical to the honor attendant's only in shades of Copenhagen and light blue.

JOHN S. Fox was his brother's best man. Seating the guests were Charles Robbins, William Benner, Richard Peterson, James Dotter, Chester Stewart, Joseph Priestley, Eugene Leinroth, Richard Wilson and Donald Graham.

Mrs. Pedder wore a grey re-embroidered alencon sheath with a panel of grey chiffon to which she pinned a pink orchid. William's mother wore royal blue silk chiffon over taffeta and had a purple orchid.

After a reception at Bloomfield Hills Country club the couple left for Northern Michigan and Wisconsin. For traveling Joanne donned a beige wool suit and matching accessories. When they return they will make their home in Wilmette, Ill.
