

Healthy Lawn Best Method of Fighting Weeds

A thick healthy lawn is the best helpful hint to take the chore out of weed-killing, according to experts on weeding. Experts who have come up with simple, beyond a doubt, they say, rule.

Ride as you mow!

Save miles of walking with this deluxe law. It's a complete power-propelled riding mower, not an attachment. Trimmer-type tool cuts a wide swath, leaving no weeds, no mowing walks and no mowing. Adjustable pulsed war. All controls in easy reach. Large REO engine. Ideal for large, reasonably level lawns. The comfortable way to mow any lawn.

Wood Siding Available in Variations

Home owners planning exterior modernization of their homes, a project often carried out at the same time an addition is made to an old house, have a choice of numerous types of wood siding at their local lumber yards.

They can obtain effects of pattern, texture, color and line that give new distinction to an ordinary type of house.

Many new houses designed by top architects and builders depend on imaginative use of wood siding for dramatic architectural effects.

NARROW widths of bevel siding or narrow widths of vertical grain give an appearance of greater size to smaller homes.

Random width bevel siding, applied in regular rotation, varying from 1-inch to 10-inch boards, gives an individuality comparable to the outside to the effect of random width flooring on the inside.

Vertical siding may be used in combination with horizontal siding to give pleasing proportion to long, low houses.

The three principal kinds of wood siding are bevel, drop and vertical. Bevel siding is a direct descendant of clapboards. The first clapboards were rough-sawn, and were lap-jointed over each other to shed the rain.

LATER, they were tapered to make one edge thinner than the other and, thus, provide a tighter fit against the house frame.

Today's bevel siding is made by sawing square-edged boards diagonally to produce two wedge-shaped pieces. Bevel siding eight inches or wider is often called long-lap or colonial siding.

Bevel siding is sometimes manufactured with the inside part of the thick or bottom edge cut away. The thin or top edge of the next piece fits into the cutaway portion to make what is called a rabbit joint.

WHEN RABBETED bevel siding is used, the back of the boards lie flat against shingles or sheathing and the shadowline on the exposed surface is somewhat less than provided by the plain bevel.

The exposed surfaces of all bevel siding have an outward slant.

Drop siding comes in many patterns and is machined on the edges so that each board joins the next in a ship-lap joint or tongue-and-groove arrangement.

A ship-lap joint is much like a

Walter S. Phelps

A. S. Brennan Agency
13700 W. McNichols Rd.,
Detroit 35, Mich.

Outstanding!

"The most interesting and satisfying job in all the world," is the way Walter S. Phelps describes his career as a life insurance underwriter with The Ohio National Life Insurance Company. The fact that Walter is a 1958 qualifying member of the Million Dollar Round Table, and for eight consecutive years has earned the National Quality Award, is not the only reason. Working with people, counseling them, helping them with their own present and future, also rewards only a dedicated life underwriter can appreciate.

Walter has clearly demonstrated his talent for serving the best interests of his clients over the years. His sales record with the A. S. Brennan Agency is naturally a source of pride to him. But more to his satisfaction is the knowledge that he has been of real service to many in his community, and to the community itself. As a leader in his chosen profession, and as a counselor to friend, neighbor, and business associate, he has earned the respect and admiration of all who know him.

Ohio National Life is proud of Walter Phelps. He exemplifies the integrity, honesty and leadership qualities that mark the successful life insurance underwriter. It's little wonder he has "made a name" for himself both locally and nationally.

Lake other respected counselors in your community, Walter Phelps, as your Ohio National Life representative is specially trained to serve you well. If you are considering the purchase of life insurance, either business or personal, Walter will be happy to serve you.
