Reporter Genevieve Maxwell interviews Brig. Gen. David W. Gray, commander of a United States paratroop unit in Lebanon. She describes the landing of Gray's first air-borne battle group of the 187th infantry as "far friendlier than that of the U. S. Marines, who did not come into the port of Beirut as on all previous friendly landings since World War II but came in on the beaches to rush in and secure the International airport and the port, both in friendly Lebanese Army hands."

U. S. Hosts Reporters At Military 'Display'

(EDITOR'S NOTE; This is another feature article on the United States military operations in Lebanon, written by Genevieve Maxwell, a reporter for the English language Beirut Daily Star and an employe of the public relations department of the American university of Beirut, She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Harding, 6294 Worlington, Bloomfield township.)
