This is a drawing by Diehl and Diehl, architects, of the Marian Gatholic high school for girls, on Lahser near Lincoln. Constriction on the Birmingham area's first large Catholic high school began last week. Five parishes are backing the project. Marian school and a companion boys' school on the same site, each designed to accommodate 1,000 pupils, will cost an estimated million dollars total. Work on the boy's school is scheduled to begin in fall of 1959. (See related picture on Page 1-A).
