Doll-Dressing
Class Party
At Hospital

The Biblical doll-dressing class conducted by Mrs. Scott Purvis of Henrietta street, Birmingham, in occupational therapy at the Pontiac State hospital holds its annual Christmas party Thursday at the hospital.

All patients who have participated in this class are invited. Those assisting to put on the party are Mrs. William Levring, Mrs. William Chapman, Mrs. Rodney Craig, head, Mrs. George Grossman and Mrs. W. Hay.

The Westminster Guild of the First Presbyterian church has provided Christmas cards for the group and made a Christmas contribution to this project. The Peg Todd Guild of the church has helped on many occasions.

PATIENTS WILL have a coffee hour with gifts distributed. The Christmas story will be retold with Biblical dolls reminding the listeners of the many gifts Christ gave to us—the gift of faith which replaces fear and inferiority, hope which replaces despair and love which replaces hate and its many offshoots that cause frustrations. This is the type of spiritual-mental therapy that accompanies the handiwork in the Doll-dressing class. Many of the Biblical dolls made in class are sold at the Occupational Therapy annual Christmas sale.

THROUGHOUT the past few years since this new type class was introduced, a number of groups and churches of various denominations have contributed toward the support of this project. Mental hospitals are always in need of financial help.

Santa Visits Goodwill

Girl Scouts alternated with Brownies as they filed past Santa's sleigh and each dropped a coin in Santa's sack on the Adams school stage recently. The occasion was the annual community sing held by Girl Scouts in the school's area. The $18.77 contributed by the 180 girls participating in the event was sent to CARE. In former years the girls made toys for distribution to children's homes, but leaders said few homes wanted gifts in such large quantities. Girls in Mrs. Oliver E. Rodgers' troop 495 planned this year's program, did the announcing and led the singing of Christmas songs from around the world.

Size—25 inches long, 27 inches high, 18 inches wide with a saddle height of 15 inches. Weight: 20 pounds.
