Save Evergreens From Winter Damage

If you have choice evergreens around the entrance to your home or broad leaf evergreens like azalea, rhododendron, ilex or holly you have a late winter problem. Sun scald and general winter damage from brisk winds combined with the sun's reflection on the snow make your plants look like a bargain counter assortment.

This winter damage can now be avoided by a plastic spray applied when the temperature is above freezing. As the shining surface will last an entire winter, you might as well apply it early in the season and secure the maximum effect. The beautiful evergreens around the Mother Church of Christian Scientists in Boston have been treated, and at all times the plantings there are in prime condition.

In our area we have damage especially to our conical junipers.

Holly plants generally lose half of their leaves because of sun in the winter.

Wouldn't you like to root some holly cuttings? This is approximately the deadline time for such a project. You can begin taking cuttings in August.

FIRST of all have a flower pot with a mixture of peat moss and soil in it ready plus a plastic bag large enough to enclose the pot and extend up six inches at the top. Plastic shirt covers are perfect.

Have an extra plastic bag, and,

WHY?

Do Husbands Beat Their Wives?

Old Welsh law admonished husbands to bestow on wives "moderate chastigation" defined as three blows on any part of the person except the head, with a broomstick "no longer than the husband's arm nor thicker than his middle finger." Blackstone's Commentaries, foundation of legal education during America's first 100 years, explained: "The husband also might give his wife moderate correction. For, as he is to answer for her misbehavior, the law thought it reasonable to intrust him with the power of restraining her, by domestic chastisement."

Smile-A-Minute

A fat woman elbowed her way through the crowd, jabbing first one person and then another. Finally she gave one nearby man an unusually hard thump and asked, "I say, does it make any difference which car I take to Mount Royal Cemetery?"
