

Extension Group Plans Classes In Dressmaking

BLOOMFIELD WEST—Mrs. W. J. McCarthy, council representative for the Oakland county extension service, has announced that the Home economics extension group of Oakland county, have included a cotton dressmaking project for this year.

This project will consist of four lessons and will be taught by Mrs. Mary Hixon, home demonstrator agent.

The instructions will begin with pattern checking and alterations and continue with the cutting and making of the dress.

To make attractive, well fitting clothes, is the aim of every woman who sews for herself or her family. After learning these sewing techniques, she can apply them in many other projects.

A PRELIMINARY meeting will be held prior to the lessons on Jan. 2, fourth floor, Board of Supervisors, Oakland county building, 1 Lafayette street, Pontiac, from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Anyone interested in the series of lessons must attend this meeting to be eligible.

The lessons will begin Jan. 9, and continue on the 9, 13 and 15, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Birmingham Congregational church, 388 N. Woodward.

These lessons are primarily for housewives. Members of Oakland county extension clubs, but anyone interested may call Oakland county extension service, Pontiac, for reservations.
