Checking Materials

Birmingham teachers attending a workshop on "Using Museum Resources in Teaching" at Cranbrook Institute of Science in cooperation with Michigan State University's Pontiac center, pause at the sales desk to examine minerals and carved animals. Left to right they are: Grace Johnson, Pierce; Dolores Kalig, Baldwin; Jeanne Killoran, Baldwin, and Lucille Zube, Baldwin.

Natural Science "Exhibit"

James A. Fowler, curator of education at Cranbrook Institute of Science, on a nature walk around Cranbrook, stops at a stone on the boulder path to point out to Birmingham area teachers that science materials are everywhere, even in a school yard. The four teachers left to right are: Joan Goldman, Quorton; Louis Sandberg, Torry; Bill Schrot, Vaughan, and Joan Kennedy, Barnum. They recently completed a workshop at the science institute on using museums in teaching.
