

Workshops Work Wonders

Little girls love to model, which explains why four-year-old Susie Edwards (left) and three-year-old Linsay Balmer look so pleased as their mothers check little girls' dresses made at a workshop. Mrs. John C. Edwards (left) and Mrs. James G. Balmer are co-chairmen of the spring fair coming up Saturday, May 24 at Northminster Presbyterian church. They and their daughters meet with other women from the church and their pre-schoolers Wednesdays for a fair workshop. "Pandemonium," one mother described the sessions at the church mance at 1452 Wrenwood, behind the church on Big Beaver road. As mothers stuff toy animals, cut patterns and sew upstairs, their children join in supervised play in the basement. Pre-toddlers either nap in a bedroom or view the activity from their teeter-habes. Said one of the mothers, "The workshops have provided a wonderful atmosphere for getting to know each other better—especially important when our congregation is growing so rapidly."

Men to Discuss Making a Living At Local Church

Businessmen themselves will do the talking when the Congregational church of Birmingham hosts a panel discussion Monday, May 26, on phases of business activity. The Men's fellowship scheduled the 7 p.m. dinner meeting after a previous successful session on the subject. Panel members representing sales, industry, and the professional world are Lawrence Westerdale, moderator; Curtis Snider, Fraser E. Pomeroy, Harold Warner, Lyla Blanchard, Dr. Theodore M. McKee and Dr. Roswell Burroughs, who are members of either the host church, Franklin Community church, St. James, or First Baptist.

Kirk in Hills Mother-Daughter Event Slated

A mother and daughter affair will be the monthly meeting of the Kirk in the Hills Women's association, which has been rescheduled from an afternoon to an evening event for Tuesday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Betrice Butterfield, 271 W. Maple road, Birmingham, will show slides taken when she was a teacher serving with the U. S. Army in Japan. The Vaughan school teacher taught fifth grade American children at Yokohama in 1935-36. Reservations for the event at Cedarholm chapel in the Kirk, 1340 W. Long Lake road, Bloomfield Hills, are being taken by Mrs. Robert J. Bloor, 176 Linden road, Birmingham. The Mary-Martha circle will host a tea at the Fireside room following the program.

By JULIE CANDLER

Ever since she heard the remark of a little girl whose father was a minister, Mrs. George Christiansen has been worried. "We're going out with our daddy today!" the youngster said with joy.

It worried Mrs. Christiansen who lives at 3555 Sunnycrest drive, Bloomfield Hills, because she and her excursions with daddy were a real rarity for this little youngster. And for many other children whose fathers are our busy ministers. To which list we would add hundreds of other Birmingham children.

Mrs. Christiansen called us last week with a suggestion. "I THINK EVERY minister should get a day off," she said. "Ministers can't take Sunday off, but surely there is one day in the seven which can set aside for themselves and their families." If churches had the minister's day off known to their members, then people would hold their calls to him for other days. Quite a few Birmingham area ministers do set aside a "day off." But we agree with Mrs. Christiansen. They all should have plenty of time to be with their families. What worries us is the many evenings ministers have to be away at meetings, etc.

WE TALKED TO the Rev. Russell L. Lincoln, of the Birmingham Unitarian church, about it once. He has a theory that ministers are no different than the average layman who has a sense of responsibility for his community life. We think he has something
