Southfield Hit Notes
By JUDY CADDELL

Report cards went home last Wednesday. With only one more student going it's amazing how some low marks have shot up. Perhaps the spring days have something to do with it.

Perhaps spring also had something to do with the "battles of the sacks." Deep rumbles had been heard for weeks, but the underground had kept them silent. "Let them go," they said, "this too will pass." But week after week, day after day, more and more girls wore sack dresses to school.

Friday the battle opened. One boy after another appeared with shirt-tails gracefully draped to wave in the wind. Monday morning, after a rush on the sack dress departments at Northlands Saturday, the day, of Southfield bustled with sack dresses of every material and color.

To continue the war, two of the protesting boys appeared wearing Anapases on their backs. What next? Further reports from the battlefield next week.

Sad-eyed seniors are counting down the days at Southfield. In 25 they will leave on their senior class trip. When they return there are only two days of exams left.

The Southfield educational association will award a $200 scholarship senior day. Also, a committee will meet Wednesday to select one of the eight applicants for the Jessie Davenport award. Karen Larsen and Ruth Sara have been given scholarships to Alma college.

No school Friday! Schoolmasters meeting.

Cheerleaders who earned positions on the squad are Judy Deem, Carol Hartka, Janet Gotberg, Marsha Lawton, Elaine Covert, Marie Sandusky, Karen Young and Pat O'Hara.

Results of the student council election: David Marsh, president; David Butler, vice-president; Ericella Johnson, secretary; and Janet Gotberg, treasurer. Senior representatives are Judy Gotberg and Robert Filar. Junior representatives are Terry Clark and Judy Deem.

Sophomore class representatives will be elected soon. These elected officers and one person from each class executive board will make up the entire council. The president will vote only in event of a tie.
