Mixture of Old-New in Europe

As the mixture of the old and the new ... that's what the Michigan/State University Players are finding as they tour the United States military bases in Europe. New friends, old friends, new buildings, old buildings. Returning days of the seven-week tour will take the student drama group to Memph, Stuttgart, Garmish, Berlin and other world-famous German cities. During the first few days in Frankfurt prior to their performance of "The Tender Trap", the 14 students met the Frankfurt Players, an amateur drama group of servicemen and civilians. Former MU students often make a point of meeting members of the cast after the performance. Here, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grau, 1973 graduates, new at Wiesbaden, Germany, chat with some of the players at the Sheridan Kaserne Service club at Ansbach. (From left are) Linda Kuklinski, Homestead sophomore, Dr. Stuart Carmichael, play director from the MU Department of Speech; the Paul Grau and James Voorhis, Bloomberg graduate student. The tour has taken the young actresses and actresses through such picturesque areas as Bavaria and Bavaria. The Klinik and small villages seem to have changed little since the Middle Ages. At Wiesbaden, the Players saw the rest of the Bishop of Wiesbaden, head of the church in southern Germany, on the morning after death of Pope Pius XII.

20,000 at Kroger Co. Open House

C. Malin Taff, vice-president of the Kroger Stores Inc., and the district director of the business, was on hand to greet the 20,000-odd guests as they mingled through the store's new distribution center. Nov. 26.

The Kroger Center, which is the worlds largest retail food center, has 28 deep freezers, 10,000 refrigerator and freezer compartments, 61,000,000 square feet of floor space, 115,000 shelves and 17,000 employees and their families, and 20,000,000 daily customers. The center is a vast warehouse, with 30 floors, which could accommodate 39 football fields stacked 30 feet high. The center is on 16 acres, and is located on 15 acres of land on the outskirts of the city.

The employees and families were given a guided tour of the store, and were then given a chance to shop, and to examine the display of food products. The center was designed to serve as a pilot for future stores, and is expected to cost $50 million.
