B'ham Youths Profit
By More Schooling

"If you're not in school, you can't be a graduate." With this in mind, Dr. James S. Head, director of the Business Education Program at the University of Alabama, says that the state's youth should be encouraged to attend school for at least eight years. By doing so, young people will be better equipped to get the jobs they need.

On Importance of Education Week

"To the Editor,

I would like to express my support for Education Week and the importance of education in our society. Education is the key to a successful future, and it is important that our children receive a quality education. I believe that parents should be involved in their children's education and that schools should be well-funded.

Sincerely,
