Hanging Baskets Make Comeback in Gardens

· By ALICE WESSELS BURLINGAME

Special Writer for The Brimingham Eccentric

"Hanging baskets" are back in style to add glamour to your garden area around your terrace or enclosed porch. You can hang them from a tree or a standard attached to a ga-rage wall or the house. They were an outstanding highlight of the recent Builder's Show at the State Fair Grounds.
Gardeners from the metropolitan area competed in their design.

Fruit Trees Add to Home

Spring blooms, summer shad and fall fruits are the triple values offered by planting fruit trees on ing, and heavier in later years, the home property. With today's The standard trees take longer to high prices for fruit, a few such bear, though they can be obtained annily trees can pay well, accord at bearing age in fairly large sizes from any leading nursery.

Fruit trees must be recommended to the property of the property o ing to the American Association of Nurserymen.

Dwarf fruit trees can be planted on the small property. They won't grow big enough to supply much shade but the fruits will be supply anake this teast comparatively easy.

There is a wholesome satisfaction for a the family growing its varieties of dwarf fruit trees hear more fruit than eyer, with which the many instances where the commercial orchardists switchies to them in many instances, where the property. In lettweet the bear where the property in lettweet delicious and wants shade as well as showed where food prices are an added insentive may be preferred.
