Clarkson Sends Report To Local Constituents

Editor's note: This article is a report from S. James Clarkson to his local constituents of the fourth district. Clarkson, state representative, was elected to the post in November. He is a resident of Southfield city.

During the past two months that I have been in Lansing, I have looked forward to the opportunity of communicating with you directly. The cooperation given me by the press is most encouraging and I am indeed grateful.

Through this media, I will relate experiences, types of bills that I will be introducing as well as the philosophies behind the different controversial measures proposed. Your comments and viewpoints relative to state issues are always welcomed and earnestly requested.

I FOUND, UPON the first day of the convening of the Legislature, that one of the "hottest" issues we would be facing, would be the financial situation of the State of Michigan. Interwoven into the deliberation of this dilemma were many important bills which were introduced, passed and defeated. I plan to comment on these bills in future reports.

IN THE ROLE of a freshman legislator, you will understand that my own orientation in Lansing was foremost. I felt that the first impression I would make on my colleagues would be the lasting one. Therefore, I endeavored to associate with my colleagues on a social plane as well as on business matters. My friends include not only Democrats but many Republicans. This relationship has been most rewarding.

NOT ONLY HAVE I received cooperation in passing those bills important to the fourth district, but I have become more cognizant of the problems of my colleagues in their immediate districts. This mutual understanding has been an important personal factor toward my becoming an integral part of the State Legislature.

Southfield Voters To Decide Park, Water Proposals

SOUTHFIELD — The City of Southfield voters will have before them two propositions Monday when they go to the polls. First is a $375,000 bond issue to enable the city to purchase a major park site.

Since the city charter sets aside by law three-tenths of a mill per year for parks and recreation, no additional taxes would be levied to pay off the bond issue. Last year the fund accumulated $22,000.

Also the electors will vote on a proposition to acquire from Southfield township the public water supply system now serving the city.

The Southfield city council has recommended that voters give the measure an "overwhelming affirmative" vote.

Acquisition of the water system from the township would not mean an increase in water rates, and could be done at little or no cost to the city. It will enable the city to expand and improve its own water system.

A 60 per cent majority of voters must vote "yes" on the proposal for it to carry.
