BHS Asserts Self At Teacher Meet
 Birmingham high school was well represented at a physics instructor's colloquium at Eastern Michigan college, April 25.
 H. Ross Strimencour, BHS instructor, discussed the experimental physics program he is now conducting.
 Carl Zwink, another BHS physics teacher, attend the colloquium as did 12 local students: Tom McKee, Jack Matthews, Bill Mordant, Bill Muenchinger, Denton Newbold, Drew Nowak, Jay Praso, Mike Rich, Tom Schafer, Walter Schmitt, John Shelby, and Matt Tate.

BHS is one of the few high schools anywhere to offer four types of physics courses at one time. The experimental physics program, college preparatory physics, and general physics courses offer students a choice. This year students could select any of these courses, designed for college students. Any student may be able to use the physics course he completes as one of the units required for college admission.

 BHS is one of 250 high schools involved in this nationwide experiment to improve science education.
