Evergreen Sewer Installed Below Woodward

This scene is rapidly returning to normal as contractors complete a portion of the big Evergreen interceptor recently installed beneath Woodward avenue in Birmingham. From this point near Harmon, the big sewer will mainly follow the route of the Rouge river southwest to a point near Lincoln and Shirley streets, where it will be connected to the existing Birmingham sewer system. City Engineer

Grover Serenbetz said contractors hoped by the end of the week to finish repaving and asphaltting the long stretch of Woodward below which the big county sewer was installed. The lanes will then be re-opened to traffic. Birmingham City Engineer Grover Serenbetz said the sewer follows the Rouge stream bed to take advantage of the low ground. It cannot affect the stream, he said.

The walleye pike is a confirmed carnivore and its food consists chiefly of smaller fish, including other walleyes. Carp are bottom feeders. They root up the bottom of a lake or pond when they feed and keep the water roily so that plants can't grow. Brook trout feed mainly on insects, insect larvae and small fish.

Alert Police Nab Car Thief From Ohio

Alert police work by two Birmingham patrolmen resulted in the capture of an Ohio man sought for car theft by the Bloomville, Ohio, police.

Officers Donald Rolph and Edmund Long arrested Leo P. Payne, of Bloomville, early Sunday after he ran a red light at Southfield and Maple.

THEY CHASED him at high speeds down Maple, and stopped him at Chestfield. When questioning Payne, they found he did not have the registration to the car and he acted suspiciously, according to the officers.

UNDER THE persistent questioning, Payne finally admitted he had stolen the car in Bloomville and the police of that city were notified.

The FBI were called because Payne had taken the car across the state line—a violation of the Dyer act.

Payne was taken to Federal court in Detroit on Monday where he stood mute to the charge.

Birmingham Renews Kresge Agreement

An agreement whereby the City of Birmingham maintains and collects funds from a parking lot owned by S. S. Kresge company at Martin and Henrietta streets was renewed this week.

The Birmingham city commission voted to extend the arrangement for five years. In return for the use of the lot, the city waives the taxes on that portion of the Kresge property.

"The system is mutually beneficial to both the company and the city," City Manager L. R. Gare said this week.
