Cupola's Up; Food in Next

Construction on A & P Food Stores' new Early American super market in Birmingham is proceeding on schedule and is expected to be ready for occupancy by late summer, according to Vice President M. W. Aldredge.

The new super market, containing nearly 14,000 sq. ft. of floor space is located at Adams and Bowers.

Early American in styling, the red brick and white trim front of the new store rises to a pitched roof with ornamental metal railing and a cupola topped by a graceful weathervane.

Inside, however, the store will present an appearance more familiar to modern food shoppers with soft colored walls, modern lighting, tile floor and air conditioning.

A major feature of the new supermarket will be a self-service meat department with new-type production line for the preparation of meat items. It will also include such present-day equipment as express checkout stands and automatic doors.

Completion of the new building will highlight A & P's 100th anniversary and 40 years of business in Birmingham.

Getting ready for the day's rehearsals are (seated) Joan Torrey and Gretchen Kuschwa; (standing) are Pat Eakins, Julie Graham, and Dana Vass. Dana and Pat are appearing in "The Curious Savage" Aug. 7 and 8, and Joan, Gretchen and Julie are appearing in "Stars In Her Eyes". Aug. 11 and 12 at Cranbrook's Greek theatre. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Cranbrook Summer Theatre Presents 'The Curious Savage'

At Cranbrook Summer theatre these days can be seen the senior students rehearsing for the last two shows of the season, Friday and Saturday they will present "The Curious Savage", a comedy by John Patrick.

The play takes place in the living room on "The Cloisters," a "Home" where Mrs. Savage is sent by her stepchildren who doubt her sanity but more important are trying to find her money that she hid from them.

HERE MRS. SAVAGE, played by Louise Victor and Sherry Kovan, finds the companionship and loyalty of Florence, played by Barbara Davis and Joanne Bradley; Hamlet, played by Norman O'Neill and Larry Rutter; Fanny May, played by Joan Altman and Sandy Storm; Jeffrey, played by Mike Levy and Dan Jakovitch; and Mrs. Paddy.

MISS WILHELMINA, played by Dana Vass and Mitzi Slawin, and Dr. Emmett, played by Larry Green, try to help Mrs. Savage in situations that arise. The gentle inmates of "The Cloisters" grope to be much sadder than Mrs. Savage's children from the insane outside world and a very warm and most enjoyable comedy is the result.

On August 11 and 12, "Stars In Her Eyes," a musical by Carl G. Weinberger will close Cranbrook's 15th season. It is built around the stiff and straight-laced traditions of old Cape Cod in 1804 and a widow's romantic love of the sea and a rollicking sea captain.

THE PLAY is set in Annabell Halsey's house. Here the pretty widow, played by Julie Graham and Gretchen Kuschwa, lives with two other widows, Matilda, played by Nancy Walker and Nancy Nababedian, who has a blunt nature and a sharp tongue but a heart of gold, and Phoebe, played by Mary Jane Funke and Katy Bigge, who is extremely shy and hopeless in love with Parson Thatcher, played by Bob Gregory, who, in turn, has been patiently courting Annabell for a year.

Adding to the merriment are Zeb, played by Paul Bergtold; Lucy Abner, played by Joan Torrey and Judy Katsen; Captain Ebenzer, played by Patrick Devine; Mrs. Spoor, played by Lane Emmer and Nancy Stein; Abigail, played by Judy Sanden and Lee Hayes; and Josiah Abner, played by Al Perstein.

THE STAGING is being handled by Dave Burnett. Rachel Lent is making the costumes and Bernice Baumgartner and Katy Bigge are in charge of the make-up. The choreography is by Roberta Ar-
