Sutermeister, Duncan Eye Election

TROY — Clifford F. Sutermeister, Jr., and Roy L. Duncan will run again in Troy's next election.

Sutermeister, a city commissioner, and ex-commissioner Duncan will run together for two commission seats open in 1960.

Liquor Question Still Unanswered

TROY — There was no decision reached last week on package liquor stores. Troy commissioners put off the topic until their city liquor committee reports on 10 S.D. applicants on a list compiled in Lansing.

The report is expected by Jan. 15.

The Michigan liquor control commission has asked that Troy pick three of the 10 applicants soon.

Gun Shots Fatal To Troy Man

TROY — A 23-year-old Troy man apparently shot himself twice Friday as he sat in the office of the Beaver Feed company where he worked.

David Lee Fielding, 1334 Bradley, died sometime after midnight, according to Dr. Earle W. Spohn, deputy coroner.

South for Summer? You'd Better Hurry

ANN ARBOR—If you prefer the sultry heat of summer to winter's cold crisp days, you should hasten south of the equator immediately, a University of Michigan astronomer advises.

The reason? "The official beginning of winter comes at 9:35 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 22," says Associate Prof. Hazel M. Losh (Ph.D.).

"That is the instant of the sun's turning north, or the winter solstice, when the sun reaches its most southerly point in its apparent yearly trip around the earth.

"On that day, the sun will swing its shortest daily arc across the northern sky, with the day being about nine hours long and the night—15 hours." Thus Dec. 22 will be the shortest day of the year, Professor Losh reminded.

"THE DATE OF Christmas is believed to bear some real relation to the sun and the winter solstice. It is likely that the date of the Christian celebration was set to agree closely with the earlier pagan festival attendant upon the rejoicing of the sun's turning northward.

"On Dec. 22, the sun will start its long trek north again toward summer, continuing to lengthen days and shorten nights until our longest days of June," she notes.
