This and That

George R. Averill

As many of you may know, every year I try to set forth in rhyme a thought appropriate for the Christmas season. Here's what I've done for this December 25:

May this and every Christmas, through all the coming years,

For loving moughts you send our way—unes ours return to you.

Yes, there's mighty moving power in the meaning of this Day;

It strengthens spirit's fiber of those who humbly pray.

There's God's regeneration, grace in Words of Gallice,

Providing loving guidance to "all who hear and see".

Providing loving guidance to "all who hear and see".

To lowly birth, of humble mien, He trod life's rugged way—

Yet left to man a rarest gift: most holy Christmas Day!
