Don't Fight the Problem

Dick Herrick didn't skate to work last week, but he skated after he got there. A salesman at Suburban Motors Company, 565 S. Woodward, Herrick said he found it easier to wait on customers and faster. With him discussing the merits of selling automobiles while doing figure-eights, salesman Frank Benish. Other city residents resorted to sand, cinders and salt to combat the icy coating that covered the area.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Lucky to Have "Noisy Neighbors"

A recent news item about an Air Force base and the town's people nearby illustrates a point I've made for some time.

Most of the local people had the same complaint—the roar of jets was irritating—to a group of them petitioned the Air Force to move the base.

Then the Air Force invited the petitioners to the base to show them how vital it was to their defense. The people soon decided jet noise was really a welcome sound—and all petitions were dropped.

From where I sit, jumping to conclusions—without knowing all sides of a question—is something people ought to avoid. It would make living together a lot easier. On little things, too—like your preference for tea or coffee and mine for beer. Understanding the other fellow's point of view will make traveling a lot smoother in this "jet" age of ours.

ANTS OF BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham city commission meeting was quiet this week. Usually so. There were no hearings. The city law always anticipates scheduling them on election day. It wants everyone to get the polls. For the first time in many years, the city commission agenda didn't contain even one letter from a citizen. Not even a complaining letter. And there were no petitions for rezoning, street paving, etc. Even when Mayor Carl P. Ingraham opened the meeting to unscheduled comments from the audience, there was silence. Only City Manager L. R. Gare was heard. He had six short reports to make to the commission. Discussion on these took less than an hour. (See related stories elsewhere in this issue.) It was a relatively quiet evening, most observers agreed.
