

Lt. Robert Schaule, school safety officer, makes sure students walk their bikes across an intersection during one of his frequent checks on safety patrol boys. Schaule also gives safety talks at the various schools during the year.

Mike Hawkins (left) of Pierce school, tells a fellow stu-dent to keep his feet on the curb until told to cross, while parpol boy Richard Downey looks on. Patrol boys also re-men on the curbs at all times, the result being that a Birmingham patrol boy has never been seriously injured

Andrew Watson, 71, of 1207 Bird is one of the two adult pards in the city. The other guard is Roy Filkins, 751 nessmut. Both are auxiliary policemen. Watson works the ossing at Maple and Chester and Filkens is at Oakland

Patrick Loughran (left) and Gregory Borgman, of Baldwin school, halt students at the corner of Merrill and Claster. Safety patrol boys are on duty before and after school and at lunch hour. Each school has one safety patrol captain and two lieutenants. All patrol boys are under the supervision of a school patrol sponsor.

A Jan. 19 hearing has been set for consideration of the special as-sessment roll (No. 506) for a storm sewer on Lake Park street south-from Redding, in Birming-ham. The project's estimated cost is $1.735.
