

What you think determines what you say and how you act? It is quite obvious that one be able to think clearly, intelligently whenever he is awake... even for the useful art of day-dreaming. Too few of us use our inherent powers to think wisely and well. Many of us use, instead, our prejudices, our partialities, our envies and resentments—and so often we merely "guess".

The Birmingham Eccentric

BIRMINGHAM, MICHIGAN

Thursday, July 2, 1959

SECTION
B

Once Upon a Summer's Day . . .

... some little children

peeked thru a fence.

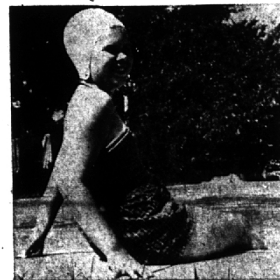

More came to see a beautiful princess sunning herself near a pool.

They saw the queen.

She smiled at them.

Another princess smiled...

... both ways!

And they saw the giant who guards the girls, too.

But then the princesses saw them...

... and invited the children to join in the fun. Oh, how the little ones smiled. Even the giant grinned!

