

Are you fantasizing a third of your car's value for the first year? You don't! Depreciation of your car is a terrible penalty to pay for owning your "new" car.

You don't! Indeed, your car doesn't depreciate, you know no penalties when you trade your car in a Mercedes. Like wine, the well-tended and cared for Mercedes improves in value with age. Drink in that, sir, and thank heaven for Mercedes.

You can see your next car, the finest you'll ever own, at THE MERCEDES SALON:

Timmy Little takes a long look at the grave of his recently lost pet. The blue jay had followed him around like a pet dog. "I'm not sure what killed him," the boy said, "But I think it might have been the diet. I think the mother fed him partly digested food, and we couldn't do that," he said a little sadly. He brightened up and said: "he liked grasshoppers, though."

Little Home Looks Like 'Who's Zoo'

Timmy was going to have a picture of his pet blue jay taken for the newspaper. But things just didn't work out that way. The pet, found on the ground, under a nest a week before, died.

THE LOSS wasn't too easy to take, but Timmy's getting used to the coming and going of pets. He's been studying animals for half his life now. Tim is 10 years old. He started with "a whole mess of dinosaur books" when he was five. "I started drawing them as best I could". As time passed, Tim learned to read and pronounce the complicated latin names of most of the prehistoric animals pictured in the books he brought home from the library. "He does better than I do," his father said, a little dismayed.

"BUT THEN dinosaurs got a little boring and I switched to birds," the young zoologist said. The little home has long been a miniature menagerie. A snapping turtle came back alive from Florida with the young hunter. On an eastern tour he bagged a lizard—"it's called the Eastern Fence climber," he pointed out.

LIFE FOR THE Littles has been one long succession of birds, turtles, dogs, rabbits, lizards and baby alligators. But Timmy doesn't plan for sure on being a zoologist or veterinarian. Those early drawings make him think he just might want to be an artist.

She Trains At U-D For Future in 'News Print' Here

A high school student from Lathrup Village will staff the University of Detroit campus newspaper for two weeks. Gloria Slavsky is learning the latest techniques in reporting and editing at a special U. of D. Journalism workshop so she can return to her own high school newspaper next September.

Gloria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Slavsky, 27258 Riverview drive, senior at Our Lady of Mercy High school, is feature editor of the publication, OLM NEWS PRINT.

Gloria also acts as the apostolic chairman of St. Michael's Youth club, Southfield. "The workshop has brought me new acquaintances, experiences and knowledge that I hope will aid my staff position on the NEWS PRINT this fall."

2nd Largest State Setting for His Science Studies

A Birmingham youth is among 30 high school students picked to study science in a four-week training program at Howard Payne college, Brownwood, Tex. Charles N. Parkinson, 647 Kenneway, is the only Michiganian attending the program which covers physical science, biology and mathematics. The program is sponsored by the National Science foundation.
