Troy Trash Man Pressured to Pay Delinquent Bills

TROY—City Manager David W. Hasse complained against two garbage collection firms in Troy justice court and ordered them to a city commission hearing on revocation of their licenses Aug. 10 in an effort to pressure the firms into paying delinquent bills.

One operator William Lankford owes the city $625, the other Gordon Whitney, owes $68, Hasse said. The money represents payments made by the city to the South Oakland Garbage and Rubbish Authority.

Troy pays for refuse handled at the authority's incinerator and must then collect from the nine private firms that contract directly with Troy homeowners.

"These contractors constantly ignore the bills we send them," Hasse said. "They pay for one month or two and always owe us for four to six months."

He added that the city ordinance is probably weak because it doesn't set a deadline for payment of the bills.

Site Study Of Farm Asked

TROY—City commissioners tabled an order for plans for a new department of public works garage and requested a detailed site study of the 28 acre Sutermeister farm on Rochester road, now owned by the city.

City Manager David W. Hasse had recommended that working drawings of a garage be ordered. commissioners instructed architects to lay out plans for the entire parcel of land.

Mayor Robert J. Huber urged a long range plan. "We can't just put down one building anywhere," he said. Commissioners have talked of reserving a place on the farm for a library and a park. Monday a future school site was added to the list.

Concern Voiced Over Distribution Of Troy Minutes

TROY — Commissioner Wallace B. Hudson voiced a concern Monday night about the speed with which copies of the minutes of commission meetings are distributed.

"I didn't realize that so many copies are going out before we have an opportunity to read the minutes and approve them," he said. "There might be some misinformation going out that way."

Mayor Robert J. Huber said, "It seems funny to me that the commissioners get copies four or five days later than anyone else."

City Manager David W. Hasse suggested, "Hold up the minutes until you have a chance to approve them. There is nothing official in them until they are approved."

Detroit Firm Picked To Audit City Books

TROY—The Detroit firm of Touche, Niven, Vailey and Smart was picked by Troy to audit city books for the 1958-59 fiscal year just ended.

The firm estimated that their audit of the books would cost the city about $2,200. Commissioners reviewed their application and others at a closed meeting.

The firm of Walter R. Naftaly of Oak Park has audited the city's books since Troy's incorporation in 1955.

Old Drain Dispute May Occur Again In Troy, Clawson

TROY—Plans are in the negotiation stage again for the Wrey drain, the crux of an old argument between Clawson and Troy.

Troy contends that Clawson benefits from the improvement of the drain because storm water spills across 15 Mile road into the Clawson area when the Troy drain cannot cope with the flooding waters.

City Manager David W. Hasse of Troy said he would push the Clawson benefit point when he introduced petitions for the improvement at Troy's city commission meeting Monday night.

Closed Meeting On Water Report

TROY—Troy commissioners will hold a closed meeting Aug. 10 to discuss a healthy-sized report on proposed changes in the water department services and procedures.

City Manager David W. Hasse gave the report to the commissioners earlier this week stating he felt there were "a lot of problems in the water department" and asked the city officials to "keep the report to themselves."

Hasse declined to make a copy of the report available to the press.

Mayor Robert J. Huber said the commission should have time to study and debate the report before it is made public.

City Manager Gets 'Real Cool' Gift

TROY—City Manager David W. Hasse works in an air cooled office thanks to an "anonymous donor" who had the portable air conditioner installed in Hasse's office Monday.

Hasse declined to say whether the gift came from one of the members of the seven-man city commission which sometimes holds closed meetings in Hasse's small inner office.
