'Howdy, Miss Lynn'

FRANKLIN—Kids in Franklin are having fun these days at the summer day camp sponsored by the Franklin Community association. When five-year-old Kip Bohne climbed aboard the buggy to "head for town" this week, Lynn Diefendorf spied an injun (Bobby Brown) lurking behind the wheels. A frantic chase followed . . . to the swings for a "jet ride."

Kelly Family Cruises Down River, Canal

FRANKLIN—Excitement? Adventure? The chance to travel? Is that what you crave? The E. J. Kellys of Redfern seemed to have found the answer.
Meeting Mrs. Kelly's brother in Buffalo, the family boarded his 60-foot cabin cruiser to sail up the Erie Barge canal, through the locks and, finally, to the Hudson River. Stopping for a spell, the crew toured New York city. Then Lynn Diefendorf spied an injun (Bobby Brown) lurking behind the wheels. A frantic chase followed . . . to the swings for a "jet ride."
Flood lights illuminated the grounds of the W. Young's home on Greenbrier June 30 as their daughter Joy celebrated her 12th birthday. The 19 guests enjoyed dinner and outdoor dancing.
It all started as an idea for a simple party. Just the few of those neighbors who didn't have anything planned for the 4th, and who would like to toss some horseshoes, play a game of badminton or just relax. Or so the Bud Guests of Birmingham thought. But apparently no one had anything special planned and yes, they'd love to come.

All during the week, the list grew. Plans were revised and re-organized. The big day arrived and what was originally to be "a few neighbors" turned out to be 114 guests.
Mrs. Guest attributes the smooth running of the party to her specially recruited squad of young guests who kept tables supplied.
Mrs. E. J. Worden of Kincaid will take over the publicity of the Franklin Branch of WNFPA. She is replacing the retiring publicity chairman Mrs. M. J. Yasp of Romey.

The Franklin Branch of Women's National Farm and Garden association managed to walk away with two first prizes—one for their work in the workshop and the other in horticulture. A second prize was awarded to the group in the field of horticultural therapy.

The local WNFPA has awarded two teachers a scholarship to attend a summer conservation school. Mrs. Earl Agar, third grade teacher at Walled Lake and Bruce Warren, superintendent of schools at Front Lake will attend the summer program at Higgins Lake. Through the Franklin WNFPA sponsored trip, an understanding of conservation and its importance will be passed on to the scholarship winners and their students.

A Neat Modern Home In A Friendly Neighborhood

At first glance, a modest modern home. But close inspection reveals unexpected roominess.
The living-dining area is unusually generous and in addition to three large family bedrooms and bath there is a fourth bedroom and bath in the high dry basement.
Also there is a large recreation room fully tiled.
It is within walking distance of a new grade school and a huge junior high is easily accessible.
All these decided advantages for only — $20,900.
