New Editorial Staffs For New School Year

Editor-in-chief of the Blue and Gray yearbook next year will be our patriotic reporter for the year's Eccentric column, Ted Garish. Ted has done a fine job this year in getting all those amusing little stories of high school life. We hope his new job won't keep him too busy to contribute next year.

The Southfield Jay, from which we unobscurely lift a lot of our news, will be edited next year by Gary Fox. The new staff of the Jay will be made up entirely of editors who will assign stories, edit and compose. Members of the staff are Gary Fox, Ardie Fry, Kay Price, Lynne Morton, Rhoda Cort, Barbara Smith, Paul Hoffmeyer, Tom Fowles and Barbara Silver.

MEMBERS OF THE Blue and Gray staff are Ted Garish, Donna Seregow, Margaret Robert, Rita Schneider, Kay Ramsey, Shelly Eshbach, Gerry Odum, Karen Young, Bonnie Higgins, Donna Duncan, Marina Lawton, Carolyn Stoker, Bob Citrin and Barry Lund.

If a French fellow calls his girl, "Mon petit chou chou," the rhymetic translation might be, "My little train." So reasoned one of Miss Virginia Hammond's French students in last year's final. Train or cabbage, as long as it is said in French, probably the girl wouldn't mind.

SOUTHFIELD HIGH school math instructor Wilbur Steinke owns a goat. As a change of pace from the world of numbers, Steinke often tells his classes of his trials with his curious pet. Recently, the adventuresome critter escaped, cornered a neighbor's small daughter on her front porch and then proceeded to make a meal of the neighbor's rose bushes. A quickly organized posse rounded up the stray and herded him back to his anxious owner.

Southfield Junior - Senior prom this year was called the "most beautiful of them all," by students and instructors alike. The "Oriental Holiday" theme called for 21,000 feet of crepe paper, twenty choke cherry trees decorated with paper flowers, a bridge to cross a pond filled with 175 cinder blocks, 35 tables, 1,000 fortune cookies and 80 gallons of tea. Birds sang in the balcony, 29 fish swam in the fountain, French umbrellas and 108 fans added to the oriental atmosphere. Attendance added up 229 couples.

By CHRIS GRYSO

The Bloomfield Hills junior high eighth graders held a dance on Friday May 29. Its title was "Ivy Twine." Tickets were 50c. Music was supplied by a band. The eighth graders who helped make this danceable are Tom Boyer, Andy Martin, Cindy Harry, and Virginia Van Dyke.

Tryouts for Bloomfield Hills high school "Jills" have been held at the junior high. The "Jills" are a vocal group of girls at the high school. Sandy Sarnes and Cherrie Patterson are the only ones at the junior high to make the finals there. They went to the high school on Friday, May 29 to see if they could make those finals. More tryouts for the finals will be held soon.

On Tuesday May 26 during 7th and 8th hours, the annual faculty and student baseball game was held. It was held at an all-school assembly. Last year the students won and this year the score was tied, 6-6.

Everyone enjoyed the game, as they are always quite amusing. It was the faculty's idea to stop the game because of a few rain drops but all students knew that they were afraid of losing the game since the score was tied.

Nearly half of all workers in Michigan are either skilled or semi-skilled.

PAM ROSS reports that the final edition of the "Ink Splash" for this year will be distributed to the students early in June. Mr. Wilson's English classes are gathering the news and hope to make this an outstanding issue.

As Kathi Thompson reports, a group of students from Barnum and Derby attended the A.A.U.N. annual conference held at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. The A.A.U.N. Birmingham chapter sponsored this trip. Its purpose is to promote world peace through understanding. Speakers were present to discuss world problems here in "Aland."

This meeting was attended with hope of starting a Junior BUNA chapter at Barnum.

BILL STRAUSS and Jim Henderson report: The All-City Book meet was held on May 28 at the Birmingham high school track. Barnum and Derby competed in an exciting meet. Barnum's seventh grade team gave an outstanding performance, winning by a score of 49-23 to 46-13. Both Barnum's eighth and ninth grade teams lost to Derby. Both teams did well.
