acquiescence, an Evergreen official said Tuesday the day will come when Franklin may be forced to buy capacity rights, since it is suspect of contributing to the pollution of Rouge streams. Several Franklin areas are known to have poor percolation and soil unsuited for septic systems.

Bloomfield Raises Connection Charge

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—The cost to Bloomfield township residents to connect into the community sewage system went from $200 to $300 by action of the township board at its meeting Monday night.

The new rate goes into effect immediately. Connection fees for multiple dwellings and commercial property will still be individually determined.

The fee raise was made to meet the increased cost to the township of the Evergreen interceptor. Revenue gained will be used to pay off the interceptor cost or for erection of sewage laterals.

IN FURTHER action, the township board amended zoning ordinance sections dealing with off-street parking and erection of signs.

New provisions require parking facilities to be surfaced to township engineering specifications and entrances and exits to be approved by the board of appeals before construction. Permanent screening must be erected near residential areas.

No signs shall be erected higher than 20 feet.

BY UNANIMOUS vote, the board agreed to give Quanton road between Telegraph and Wing Lake roads. The road serves the junior high school. One-half of the estimated $28,000 cost is to be borne by Oakland county.

Board approval was given plans for Hammond Lake estates No. 3, Westchester Village No. 4 and Pine Grove estates.

The board will next meet April 4, when the annual township meeting is held at 1:30 p.m. at the township offices.

provided by the Wood Creek's Women's group.

UNOPPOSED candidate for village president, incumbent Alger Clark, polled a 77 vote of confidence to remain head of village affairs for another two years.

Lam is the wife of Dr. Conrad R. Lam and active in girl scout and PTA activities. She will join councilman Harry Dobson and Dr. Zar Reaser, clerk Arthur Busch, treasurer M. E. Duvoport and assessor Robert Swift, all with another year to serve.

Liam Hyland, council veterans, to serve two more years. Newcomer Donald G. Morse, resident for 2½ years, will take the post vacated by Evan Reim, retiring street administrator.

New also is treasurer James M. Washburne, resident of seven years. Unopposed, Walter J. Gerick will continue as assessor.

of citizens in the school district, unaffiliated with any association, who organized to gather support for the board's proposals.

"We feel," said superintendent of schools Eugene Johnson, "that the public has given us a mandate to continue a sound educational program. We will continue to do so as economically as possible. There will be no extravagance."

OF THE seven election precincts, the proposals were carried in all but the Hickory Grove precinct.

The Hickory Grove school district is already paying additional millage which was a part of the stipulation when it was admitted to the Bloomfield Hills school system. Many Hickory Grove residents said that when the old Hickory Grove school building was sold, the funds should have been applied to their indebtedness rather than to the school district as a whole.

Some opposition also stemmed from the dropping of a proposed addition to the new Hickory Grove school from the building and site bond issue.

us all together. I hope we stay that way."

JOHN McBRIDE, who served as chairman of the yes committee, is described by Mrs. McGaughy as "a gold mine of organizational power . . . unearthed at a time when he was needed most."

Facts, and not high pressure, were the tools used by a publicity "quartet" — Bill Bachman, Earl Givens, Howard Hallas and John Conde — according to Mrs. McGaughy.

Important to the job was the mailing of campaign literature. The Sub-deb club of Bloomfield Hills high stuck to the job of sorting, folding and stuffing envelopes. Working alongside them in a last-minute emergency were Superintendent of schools Eugene Johnson and Assistant Irving Menacci.

Johnson's secretary, Ellen Beauchamp, gave up valuable weekend time to help.

"THE PTO had working representatives — not just people who allowed their names to be used," said Mrs. McGaughy.

Among those she mentioned were "Bob Nelson, Mr. and Mrs.

William Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Plaxton, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fricks and Dr. and Mrs. Mark Dale.

Working against "formidable odds" at Hickory Grove, she said, were Richard Graves and Richard Wright. Mrs. McGaughy added that "my fondest hope for Hickory Grove now is that a way be found as soon as possible to get those three additional rooms for the Hickory Grove school that were lopped off the bond issue this time as a necessary legal, political expedient."

OF THOSE individuals who voted against the tax raise, Mrs. McGaughy said "their opinions, some of them expressed very ably, were given courteous consideration even in the heat of campaign."

After thanking The Birmingham Eccentric for "informative articles and the publication of letters," Mrs. McGaughy concluded with the observation "democracy is in action in our Bloomfield community. It is doing well with us — and we must continue to keep it doing so."

"The PTO had working representatives — not just people who allowed their names to be used," said Mrs. McGaughy.

Among those she mentioned were "Bob Nelson, Mr. and Mrs.
