Holcombs and Thorburns Vacation in Switzerland

The snow capped mountains of Switzerland lured the A. W. Holcombs of W. Orchard Hill drive and their traveling companions, the James Thorburns of Royal Oak, for two of the most memorable weeks of their lives.

They flew to New York where they boarded a Pan American Jet for London. They learned upon landing in London that they had missed their plane by minutes to Zurich, Switzerland, and had to wait a day before completing their trip. This gave them the opportunity to get a "birds eye view" of London.

After arriving in Zurich they boarded a train that took them to the quaint little village of Kelzibühl, Austria, which is noted for its skiing and old world charm of years gone by.

Their accommodations were on the top floor of the picturesque Tifenbruner hotel, and from their windows they had a magnificent view of the mountains, the Swiss Chalets and the cobblestone streets. When they weren't skiing in their shirtsleeves in the 70 degree temperatures, they were in the village visiting with the people during their six day stay. They were impressed with the wood carvings and lattice work that decorated the gaily colored village homes.

They will long remember their first night there when they were taken down deep stone steps by the jolly hotel proprietor to the intriguing wine cellar where they lost all track of time talking to the many interesting people of all nationalities. Then on to Closters, Switzerland, where they spent another six days touring the villages and skiing in the Davos mountain range. Some of the ski trips down the mountains took them as far as nine miles. They found all ages from two to eighty enjoying the sport.

After their stay they flew back to Zurich and then on to Copenhagen, Denmark, where they were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Cole of Pontiac, parents of Mrs. Holcomb. The Coles had also been vacationing in Europe. The three couples then left Denmark homeward bound. Anxiously awaiting the Holcombs were their children, Gary and Andrea.

Dr. and Mrs. George Smith of W. Orchard Hill drive are home after 10 days of skiing in Aspen, Colo. Accompanying them on the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hutson of Royal Oak. The Narvas Lodge was their headquarters during their stay, as they spent many hours skiing on the mountain slopes.

The Tom Bramsons of Oakhill drive have devised a new vacation plan which has proved most successful. They and their companions the Joseph Hardigs of Birmingham, spent two weeks in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., basking in the sun, swimming, fishing, golfing, and making their headquarters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy T. Bramson, parents of Bramson.

The senior Bramsons, former Birmingham residents, spent their two weeks vacation at their son's home on Oakhill drive.

Mrs. L. J. Keeler of Orchard Hill drive and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Keeler of Royal Oak, co-hosted a luncheon wedding shower on Saturday afternoon at the Keeler residence on Orchard Hill drive.

The honored guest was Loretta Lucas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lucas of Royal Oak, former residents of Kirkcaldy drive, Charing Cross Estates. An April wedding is planned.

The Edward Browns are newcomers to Northover road, formerly of Groove Pointe Woods. Brown is supervisor of plastic dye models at Milsmith Industries in Warren.

Their children are Diane, 10, Doug, 7, and Karen, 5, attending Eastern school. At home is Edward, four months. Their interests include sailing, gardening and music.

New residents on Chestnut Hill drive are the C. Granville Sharps of Whittier, Calif. They have two children, Kitty, 11, Tom, 8, attending Harlan school, and Jeff, 2. Sharp is a plant manager for Chrysler Corp. and is presently making plans for a new production plant in Detroit. Among the family's many interests are gardening, golfing and scouting.

The Wayne Garretts, Jr., are new residents of Butternut Hill drive, formerly of Highland Park. Garrett is a design engineer with Chevrolet-Truck division, and Mrs. Garrett is affiliated with Detroit Edison in Detroit. Golf is among their hobby interests.

Co. Van Dyke.

All hobbies are taking a back seat while the Hollises enjoy their "little newcomer." Donna Renee, born Feb. 19. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William F. Dakquist of Lathrup village, and the paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Hollis.
