what's your specialty?

When I was a kid, it seemed a man had to know a little bit about almost everything. He needed to be at the very least a pretty fair farmer, carpenter, mason, weatherman, veterinarian, mechanic, and bookkeeper. But nowadays, we're each better off to stick to our own specialty—and call on other specialists when we need them. We get in touch with a professional builder when we want a new house—and we see a doctor about anything that concerns our health.

The same sound reasoning applies when you—as a home owner, car owner or businessman—want reliable insurance protection. Talk with a specialist in insurance—a man with the training and experience to tell you which insurance company will give you the best all-around protection for your money.

Insurance—for cars, homes and business—is my specialty. I'd be glad to help you get the right insurance. Just give me a call.

Camera in Cambodia Brings Far East Near

The last week at BHHS was highlighted by a general assembly on Tuesday when Mr. Dean LaRue showed a portion of his slides taken in the Far East, especially in Cambodia.

Mr. LaRue spent the entire school year 1958-59 as a government exchange teacher in Cambodia, where he taught English to high school students. Now back at BHHS, Mr. LaRue is again teaching all the French classes in the school.

THE SLIDES showed the life of the people of the Far East, something to which we are seldom exposed. They were most interesting, and afforded the students an informative and still relaxing respite.

Preparations are being made for the first of two pancake suppers to be held at the high school in an attempt to raise money for a foreign student. All proceeds from the dinner, on Thursday, Nov. 19, will go toward bringing a foreign student to BHHS next year. Tickets are available at the high school. Help us out.

HERE AND there: The Barons finished out a somewhat disappointing season of football last week by losing to Clarkson, 21-12. Saturday night surprised Dave MacFarlane when he came home to find a dozen friends assembled for a surprise birthday party. Many happy returns, I'm sure.
