Survey Discloses: Clothes Sell B'ham

The clothes that allegedly make the man, apparently make the Birmingham central business district too.

This was the most forceful point made in the recent Saturday survey of shoppers conducted by nine volunteer members of the Birmingham Junior chamber of commerce.

JAYCEES interviewed 517 persons found walking through downtown Birmingham, Sept. 19.

From the complete and usable answers (58%), City Planner Herbert Herzberg has been extracting facts and conclusions.

Among them: 44 1/2 per cent of the shoppers were in the city to buy clothes; 46 per cent of the shoppers came from outside the city limits; 91 per cent said shopping in downtown Birmingham was a pleasant experience.

INTERVIEWERS were stationed along Woodward from Willets to Merrill, on Maple from Woodward to Baires, and on Pershing from Woodward to Merrill.

The block bounded by Woodward, Maple, Pierce and Merrill ran second, attracting 98 of the interviewed shoppers.

WOMEN'S CLOTHES constituted the largest single drawing-card—188 per cent of the interviewed potential money-spenders.

Next-longest line of shoppers was that in the general category that included cameras, gifts, drugs, office supplies and music—153 per cent.

Next in line were furniture and hardware shoppers, and those on bank business—115 per cent.

HERZBERG said seemed to indicate that Birmingham's trade area is approximately 22 square miles—about five times the city's land area.

The trade-area line, Herzberg explained, is circumscribed by a line drawn on a map through the homes of those who spend 50 per cent of their buying income in the central area. Shoppers inside the line would probably spend more than 50 per cent in the central area, those outside, less.

The trade-area line swings mainly to the west and north of Birmingham. It cuts through Wing Lake and almost to the northern city limits of Bloomfield Hills.

ITS EASTERN extreme is set at Coolidge and Maple. On the south it includes almost all of the City of Beverly Hills and a corner of Royal Oak.

High on the popularity poll were the "convenient shopping" and "courteous people" in downtown Birmingham.

Those who liked Birmingham, however found flaws: the need for improved parking headed the list.

Twenty three Royal Oak shoppers (6.01 per cent) interviewed. The survey, Herzberg said, is representative, although a broader coverage, both in the number of

KARL D. BAILEY
Leaves Post After Serving 29 Harvests

After 29 years of service to Michigan State university, Karl Bailey, district horticultural agent for ten counties in southeastern Michigan, will retire Jan. 31.

He joined the Extension Service staff as Oakland county agricultural agent in 1921 after teaching vocational agriculture at Holly.

HE EARNED his B. S. degree at Michigan State in 1921 and took post-graduate work at the University of Michigan and Wayne State university. For the past 10 years he has served the fruit and vegetable industry in southeastern Michigan as horticultural agent.

Bailey's contributions to the agriculture of Michigan have been many and include organizing the first county-wide 4-H fair in Oakland county, Oakland Soil Conservation district, Southeastern Michigan Grower's association, and Southeastern Michigan Fruit Growers' society.

He recently developed a program for the selection and improvement of parent stock for the forced fruit industry. He is the author of "Agriculture in Oakland County", a land-use publication.

BAILEY HAS served as President of the Michigan association of county agricultural agents and was awarded the Distinguished Service certificate by the National association of county agricultural agents in 1948.

He lives with his wife Elizabeth (Weir) Bailey and their two sons at 5775 N. Adams, Bloomfield township.
