

Future Expressway
Picture Painted
For S'field Planners

SOUTHFIELD—State highway officials attempted to show Southfield city planners recently that a super highway would have a desirable effect on a rural city. The officials, seeking city approval of the east-west expressway, pictured a huge industrial park along the south side of the east-west road between Inkster and Northwestern.

They showed most of Eight Mile frontage as commercial and industrial. A professional office and research area were shown along Northwestern and the east-west on both sides of 11 Mile between Telegraph and Evergreen.
