Franklin's Younger Set Plans Halloween Parties

FRANKLIN—Whether the frost is on the pumpkin or not—the Halloween season is here with costume parties for the young set.

Ten-year-old Janice Qualities of Woodside invited 15 classmates to celebrate her birthday Saturday. And even though some of her guests had attended Bingham Farms' Gerri Lepine's party, in costume, the night before. Most of them had completely different getups on for Janice's party. Franklin, Bingham Youngsters Invited To Village Party

FRANKLIN—Village children, through the sixth grade are invited to attend the community Halloween party scheduled at 7:15 p.m. Oct. 30.

P.A. program chairman Ralph Smith has planned a large bonfire on the lower playing field of Franklin school. Everyone in costume will be asked to join a parade, participate in a drawing of prizes and share the cider and doughnuts.

Pre-school children and those attending private or parochial school in elementary grades will be welcome, providing they are residents of Franklin or Bingham Farms.

day best, 18 young ladies joined Debbie Quint for a birthday supper party at her Colony Hill home last Wednesday. Brother Dick, also celebrating a nearby birthday, invited his gentleman friends over for a drink and a dance. Then Dad had the boys out for dinner.

Following this double-barrelled event, the Quint family took to the woods near Cabrefra and Cadillac to recapture and enjoy the autumn colors for several days.

Newest addition to the Ted Kelter family on Franklin road is number six child, Adam, born the last day of September. The score is even now, with three boys and three girls.

"We only know it isn't 'subversive'" says Mrs. Von Polhemus of her daughter Sue's appointment as executive secretary of the national executive committee of the national student association. Sue is in her third year at the University of Wisconsin, majoring in physical therapy. The Polhemus family is planning to move soon from their Captain's Lane home to Lake Angelus.

Full colors lured Mr. and Mrs. Phil Price and son David to the Big Bay region of Lake Superior last week. It meant priming the old handpump, cleaning the kerosene lamp chimneys and fishing for pike and walleyes in a snow storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Carse of Garden Way entertained 28 business associates and wives Saturday for cocktails and a buffet supper.

E. B. Doherty of N. Greenbriar paid a call on his son Brian, hard at work as a pre-med student at Georgetown university, last week.

Mrs. Harlow Bates and her mother, Mrs. Alice Allen, held a last week at their home on 13 Mile road.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley (nee Sue Roschberry) returned to Franklin for a few days to visit Sue's family on Wellington road and gather up wedding gifts for their new apartment in Wierdon, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hampson of Woodside return this week from a holiday in Martinsville, Va. Trying out a brand new plane, Stan Hunter, Colony Hill, and Art Thureson of Wood Creek Farms headed for S. Dakota and pheasant which will ultimately grace future dinner parties at both homes this winter.

The Marshall Roos of 13 Mile road made their annual trek with bows to the north woods in quest of game birds, targets for their flying arrows.

Cindy Madalin and Cindy Garwood, both of Hersheyvale, held their sixth birthday parties a week ago. Miss Madalin entertained guests on Friday. Miss Garwood celebrates hers next Saturday with neighborhood friends feasting both.

Thanksgiving seemed too long to wait, so Pete Green indulged a whim and flew home from the University of North Carolina to visit with his family on Woodside.
