brook-Kingswood schools has asked me to be kept informed of our progress so that they may be included with the public schools.

I CANNOT STRESS strongly enough how important it is for parents of elementary school children to become aware of the situation that will face them and their children as soon as (and sometimes before) they enter junior high. Many parents seem to be totally unprepared for the intense social whirl that catches our boys and girls at an increasingly younger age.

Sometimes we even encourage it because the kids "look so cute" all decked out in miniature formal, etc.

As a result, these youngsters can't help but assume that the partying society is the main purpose in life, and as long as nobody tries to curb them, they keep right on demanding more and more privileges without the accompanying responsibilities.

IN CITIES where the reins have been tightened (BY AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE TEENS AND PARENTS) everyone has been delighted to discover that the kids have subconsciously been crying out for restrictions all along.

Wood you want your son or daughter, at 13 or 14, to attend open-house parties for all ages—19 and 20 year olds at same parties as the 14 and 15 year olds? This does happen; so you see there is a cause for concern. IT THERE IS AN ANSWER, and with your help we can guide our teenager to a slower and more satisfactory pace.

THIS PROBLEM is occurring throughout the United States—perhaps all over the world—and there are many cities and at least one state (Minnesota) which have faced it realistically and have encouraged their young people to set up standards for themselves in the form of social codes.

The code helps to keep the kids from feeling "out of it" when they adhere to its limits, and it gives parents a leveling point to help keep them from being too strict or too lenient.

Admittedly, it imposes a degree of self-discipline on teens and parents alike, but, oddly enough, a feeling of satisfaction with each other is developed, because each KNOWS the other is trying to live up to the right way for their own community.

OUR COMMITTEE'S first meeting for the 1959-60 year will be held on Tuesday evening, November 3, at 8:00 p.m. in the board room of the Birmingham YMCA (Lincoln, between Woodward and Pierce). There will be speakers who will tell us their experiences in working with young people and helping them to establish acceptable behavior standards.

If YOU want to help, won't you please attend this meeting? More information can be obtained by calling one of these numbers: MI-1-1766, MI-4-2753, and MI-6-8637. Please call the last number on weekends and in the evening.

He can wander about wherever he chooses—with no restraints or required human companions.

He can chase mice, birds or wild-life for fun or food—and few humans pay him any mind.

And he has no catcher to worry about.

Discrimination today is on its wane. No more discriminating movies, nor plays, nor shows, nor jokes, nor jobs nor anything else. Always, I say, with discrimination against dogs!

Arise, ye canine societies, and fight for your friends!

Moxley Gets Nod On Negotiating Signal's Return

Birmingham Police Chief Ralph W. Brantley, this week received commission approval on his recommendation to negotiate the re-installation of a traffic signal on Woodward at or near Chapin.

Moxley was reporting the results of a study which shows there is a serious driving and pedestrian hazard in that half-mile stretch of US-10 since the old Chapin signal was taken down when a new one was put up at Adams road.

Residents in the south part of Birmingham previously had demanded the city try and get the state to replace the Chapin signal.
