Presbyterian Church Scene of Ceremony

First Presbyterian church of Birmingham was the scene Saturday evening for the marriage of Diana Shepherd Forshev and John Homer Rose. Dr. W. Glen Harris officiated at the 7:30 o'clock ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Forshev III of Glenary road, Birmingham. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rose of Birmingham boulevard, Birmingham.

THE BRIDE appeared in a long white gown of tissue tulle with a chapel train, long tapering sleeves and scalloped scooped neckline with applied aproned neckline and seed pearls of dress in four inch panel to hemline. A cap of alenon lace and seed pearls secured her fingertip veil of silk tulle. She carried the family's white Bible with a bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, lily-of-the-valley and pink carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. J. R. Davis and bridesmaids were Georgianna Jacobus and Susan McGuire. Maid of honor was Ann Ferguson.

MRS. JOHN HOMER ROSE

THEY WORE American Beauty satin gowns designed with accented necklines and bodice of matching chintilly fabric. They carried white tulle trills with touches of red and ivory.

Flower girls, Elizabeth and Dawn Forshev, sisters of the bride, walked down the aisle in pink organza dresses with applique flowers and trimmed in lace. Their bouquets were sweet-breed roses.

William Warner Rose, Jr., stood as best man. Ushers were Frank C. Forshev, Jack Davis, Donald I. Adams, James R. Vinci and Fred Staranovich. Ring bearer was Charles Forshev, brother of the groom.

FOR HER daughter's wedding, Mrs. Forshev chose a silk brocade sheath of sea green with matching accessories. Her flowers were white ymbidion orchids.

Most of the guests selected a dusty blue chiffon sheath with a draped bodice and pink ymbidion orchids.

Reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. The new Mrs. Rose chose a brown winter cotton dress with jacket to start her wedding trip to Northern Michigan. They will make their home in East Lansing.

Waterfall Hunting Popular With Michigan Travellers

Michigan's upper peninsula is a treasure trove for collectors of waterfalls. More than 150 falls—mostly of the beaten path—sprinkle their way down the jagged cliffs of this wilderness vacation country.

They range from the wispere cascades of Laughing Whitefish Falls in Alger county to the violence and thunder of the mighty Tahquamenon near Newberry, just 70 miles northwest of Mackinac Bridge.

All hold an irresistible lure to the traveler: the only trick is to find them. But, that's part of the attraction too.

THE BETTER-KNOWN falls, such as Munning, Bond, AuTrain, Victoria and Horrace Rapids, have been fascinating tourists for years. But most cascading waterfalls are the well-traveled roads and their hushed beauty goes relatively unnoticed.

Some are only a few hundred yards off main highways, while others can be reached only after miles of hiking through northern forestland.

One of the more remote is Epitote falls of Ontonagon county's Carp River. But it's worth it. For nothing can match the muted splendor of white water bubbling and boiling in the solitude of the deep woods.

For the sportsman, many of these streams offer excellent trout fishing, too.

THE TRAVELER willing to accept the challenge and spend a bit of time locating some of the lesser known falls will find the thrill of discovery well worth the effort.

A free Michigan waterfall directory is available to assist vacationers in finding these natural wonders. This list, which includes general locations of falls, can be obtained from the Michigan tourist council, Lansing 26.

Waterfalls can be found in nearly every area of the upper peninsula; and in the lower peninsula, there is Oscquewa falls in Presque Isle county, the only natural falls in Michigan below the Straits of Mackinac.

While waterfall exploring is especially popular in summer, the beauty of the falls becomes even more breathtaking during the autumn color season, and is most spectacular when stream waters reach near-flood stage in the spring.

AT ALL TIMES they present an incomparable view to the lover of the out-of-doors and an ever changing subject for the vacationing camera fan.

For those with an historical turn of mind, such names as Little Trap falls, Big Garlic falls, Yellow Dog, Michigamme, Snake, Kakabika, Tondaga, Little Giant, Okimako, Rocky Forty, Chandler, Haymeadow and Hunters Brook appear on the kaleidoscopic story of the Indian and the French trapper, the lumberjack and settler, all of whom left their mark on Michigan.

While no list of Michigan's waterfalls can be considered final, upper peninsula naturalists name 12 in Alger county, 12 in Baraga county, three in Chippewa, three in Delta, nine in Dickinson, 32 in Gogebic, six in Houghton, 14 in Iron, seven in Keweenaw, one in Lake, 25 in Marquette, one in Menominee and 23 in Ontonagon county.

LP Makes Handy Pack Of Music

ANN ARBOR—The long-playing record has had much the same relationship to the spread of music that the invention of printing had to literature," according to Dean Earl V. Moore of the University of Michigan School of Music.

"The LP's have made it possible for people to hear in their homes symphonic works which, at the turn of the century and in its twenties, they would have had to go to New York or Chicago to hear," he said.

"A FEW YEARS ago, students didn't own standard records to any extent. Now I find that one or more students who select the course in symphonic literature own recordings of several of the symphonies we are studying. Before nobody owned more than one or two," Dean Moore stated.

"Because of the extent of coverage of all types of music literature by LP's, I'll wager the choral works of the 14th and 15th centuries is more familiar to our students than the library works of the same period," he said.

"This increased familiarity with good music has come about, of course, because of the lowered cost of the LP as compared with the '78.' The '78' record was an expensive item because one had to be printed separately. If you can print five times as many records with the same pressure, it naturally reduces the cost.

"TECHNICAL difficulties have been overcome to a great extent, too. In the early days of recording-making the fluttering of a page by an orchestra member or his merest sigh often made it necessary to scrap a recording that had been perfect until its last measure. Now mistakes in tapes can be deleted with no trouble at all, and the rest of the tape salvaged.

"Another great advantage of LP's for the student is that he can listen to a musical work in nearly full orchestra-hall volume and in its entirety instead of broken into segments of three or four minutes playing time, as was the case with the '78.' When your music is broken up into sections, you aren't studying an art work as a whole; you're looking at the equivalent of a pie cut up into pieces," the dean said.
