Mich. Unit Strikes Out From Cancer Society

The Board of Trustees of the South Oakland County unit of the Southeastern Michigan division of the American Cancer society recently voted unanimously to terminate its activities with the American Cancer society and continue its operations as a unit of the Michigan Cancer foundation.

It is the only South Oakland county health agency authorized to receive funds in the interest of cancer from United Foundation Trust drives.

No charge is ever made for the initial consultation, and treatment is never refused anyone unable to pay for it.

The DCA conducts weekly group therapy sessions, shows films, and distributes literature. The DCA is one of the leading organizations in the country in the field of education on alcoholism. The committee is also active in the fields of research and legislation.

The DCA clinic has helped hundreds of sick human beings from all walks of life back to useful lives in Metropolitan Detroit. Costs to industry, business, and taxpayers created by alcoholism have been made in terms of human life, mental health of affected children, and in human dignity.

Services of the Detroit Committee on Alcoholism are available to all residents of the Metropolitan Detroit area, including Oakland county.

The Out-Patient clinic and Alcoholism Information center are at 3919 John R. street in the "Doctors' building" across from Harper Woods and Algonquin meetings.

The clinic has been operating since 1950 under a grant from United Community services, one of the red feather services supported by the torch drive.

HUNDREDS of men and women patients are treated each year. Referrals are sometimes made to in-patient hospitals such as the one at Brighton discussed in the sixth article in this series, or to Alcoholics Anonymous.

Anyone interested in the problem of alcoholism can get information from the Detroit Committee on Alcoholism, which are referred to the DCA by A. A. clergymen, doctors, industries, and others.

The DCA works in cooperation with the Yale Center of Alcohol studies and is affiliated with the National Committee on alcoholism.

ALCOHOLICS' their families, friends, or employers may call in person or by phone for information which will explain and encourage proper treatment for the illness which has 100,000 victims in Detroit alone.

THE SOUTHEASTERN Michigan division has been an agency of the Greater Detroit's United Foundation for the past seven years.

Upon losing its American Cancer society charter, the division immediately took action to continue its cancer control program as the Michigan Cancer foundation with the financial support of United Foundation.

"We are in accord with the Division Board of Trustees," Dr. James Ladd, president of the South Oakland county unit said. "We believe that local option should be allowed in the matter of fund-raising. We could not hope to raise as much money in independent campaigns as we are assured as an agency of United Foundation. For this reason, we stand with the Division board in its decision to accept revocation of the American Cancer Society charter rather than endanger the effective cancer control program we now have in operation."

"I would like to assure the people of this area that our program of service to cancer patients and of educational material available to all individuals, clubs and organizations desirous of obtaining them will be continued. There will be no abatement or alteration in the program we have been carrying on under the banner of the American Cancer Society."

"WE SINCERELY hope the day will come when we can resolve our differences on the fund-raising issue and again resume our activities under the sponsorship of the American Cancer society. Until that day comes, however, we will continue our cancer control activities as the Michigan Cancer Foundation."

Mrs. Lester Holbrook, volunteer activities chairman for the unit, joined Dr. Ladd in assurance that the program of education and service to the public would be continued. "We have a fine group of volunteers in South Oakland county," Mrs. Holbrook said. "They are interested in the program that has been developed chiefly through their efforts and have assured me they will continue working for the good of the community as volunteers for the Michigan Cancer foundation."

Our office is still open at 1739 Coiffage Hwy. and we welcome any requests for educational material or help for persons afflicted with cancer.

The Pearls Match
