

E. J. Troys Celebrate Golden Anniversary

By MARIAN EILER
Special Writer.

LATHRUP—All that glittered was gold last week when some 200 guests attended the 50th wedding anniversary celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Troy.

Gold floral gifts, gold wrapping paper, gold bows and a tiered golden bride cake highlighted the open house held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Vernon Fish-tahler, 18220 Wilshire, Lathrup.

Earlier in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Troy repeated their wedding vows in a church service with Mr. and Mrs. Fish-tahler as special witnesses. Also in the ceremony were Fish-tahler's mother, Mrs. J. K. Fish-tahler and the grandchildren, Larry, Carol and Brian.

OUT OF TOWN GUESTS included Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Thompson and their children, Pamela, Drew and Ricky, from Saginaw; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Bauman from Cincinnati.

Residents of Lathrup Village who attended the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Frank York and son, John; Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle How-er; Mr. and Mrs. John Pasutin, and Dr. and Mrs. Roger F. Smith.

The Robert Bryces of San Jose, along with son Kenneth and daughter Judy, spent a pleasant three weeks in Miami Beach. They visited relatives in Miami and saw friends and former residents of Bloomfield Hills. Mr. and Mrs. John Howarth.

Highlight of the trip was a deep sea fishing trip where Bryce caught a 6-foot, 8-inch sailfish which he brought home to be mounted. Judy and Kenneth spent much of their time in the pool at the Pan American Motel where they stayed for the entire three weeks.

The Charles O'Neils of Spring River drive are busily planning their trip to South Bend where they will see Notre Dame's first home football game of the season. While there, they will visit Mrs. O'Neils' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sirochanski and a sister, Mrs. William Hemphill.

Henry J. Gutwald of Chalmers ford road left last week for a three-month stay in New Delhi, India, where he will be working on the architectural designs for the United States buildings to be exhibited at the World's Fair to be held there in 1960. Gutwald works with Minoru Yamasaki and is employed with his firm in Birmingham.

New residents of the area are the Donald Cavanaughs of Fall River road. The Cavanaughs have two children, Dan, 5, attending Northbrook kindergarten, and Kathleen, 2. Cavanaugh has his own jewelry firm in Detroit. He is a graduate of the University of Detroit and a member of the Knights of Equity.

He enjoys painting in oils and is very interested in politics. Mrs. Cavanaugh attended the University of Detroit and is interested in music.

pany can plan for services in the village, he also said.

THE OTHER requests for hearing went more serenely.

Aside from pertinent questions about the site and location of the proposed new post office on the corner of Carol and Franklin roads, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schoeffel, only one question, about increased traffic, seemed provocative.

Robert Mitchell, former councilman urged the board to study hazards which might be incurred at the foot of the hill with the new building.

ARCHITECT John A. Allen described the proposed addition to Paute's shop on Franklin road. The new section will offer two to four spaces for professional offices.

It will be masonry construction and will blend with the present story and a half frame building, one of the oldest in the village. Zoning board officers suggested revision be made for better parking and egress to the street.

Stating that his sketch was merely a preliminary plan, Allan agreed to make suggested changes to meet zoning requirements. Decisions for all three requests heard will be rendered in a "reasonable" amount of time, some thirty residents and appraisers were told.

Southfield Youth Hit by Automobile

SOUTHFIELD—A 16-year-old Southfield boy was struck by a car in front of Southfield High school Friday suffering multiple cuts and fractures.

Police said William A. Sliowski, 2703 Westhaven, was struck by an automobile driven by 17-year-old William G. Ellis, 20158 Madu, Southfield.

LATHRUP—Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Troy cut the golden tiered wedding cake at their 50th anniversary celebration.

Southfield to Study Water System Cost

SOUTHFIELD—The city of Southfield may hire a finance expert to study methods of paying for the city's proposed $563,300 water transmission system. City councilmen want to investigate different methods before enacting a plan which calls for a $5 per $4 per front foot charge for benefiting property owners, a $100 tap-on charge and a regular $150 service connection charge.

when she entered her son, Tommy, now 3, and later Peter, now 6, in nursery school.

The cooperative nursery school movement is probably the most significant folk movement in America today, she contends, holding that young horizons are broadened in a nursery school environment.

For two years she was president of the Greater Detroit Cooperative Nursery Council, which incorporates Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

ENTHUSIASM like Frances Cohen's might have a lot to do with the fact that six years ago the council listed 35 nursery schools. Today there are 70.

Then there's the story of this young housewife and the League of Women Voters. That, she says, is "my other love and my oldest extra-curricular activity."

An LWV member since her Detroit days, she's now on the board of directors of West Bloomfield's group, and its local agenda chairman. That means she is to "continue the study of township financial structure, putting special study emphasis, with a view to action, on the tax-supported libraries of West Bloomfield."

WHEN SHE isn't busy with the study and her other activities, this lady with a zest for life is aiding her husband with his do-it-yourself projects. A talented artist as well as an engineer, "Peppy" Cohen, as his friends call him, is converting the old farm house's interior into a beautifully-appointed contemporary setting.

There again Mrs. C. is consistent. Not an antique can be seen amongst her handsome modern furnishings.

Just to keep life interesting, she's planned another program for the fall. She's going to take piano lessons and practice while 15-month-old Emily is napping daily.

If her mother is true to her ways, young Emily will soon be waking to the well-recited strains of Tchaikovsky, Brahms and Chopin.

aid the flow of water to its nearest point of discharge.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS for the village include the purchase of a $5,739 billing unit. They also authorized Village Manager Robert Murphy to purchase a three-quarter ton truck for the new water department.

The village is considering the purchase of two scout cars for the department of public safety and radio equipment for both the new cars and the water truck.

Clothes for a College Coed

LATHRUP—While advertisements flaunt the old adage "Clothes make the woman", Jan Baehler, 18554 Roseland, is one college coed who reverses it. She makes the clothes. Above she wears a rust and black tweed jumper part of the wardrobe she took back to Western Michigan college recently. Other sewing projects include a number of skirts for classroom wear and a hand-stitched beige linen dressy dress.

of himself, Steinfurth, and two other persons, one of whom was dropping out. "I think the Steinfurth committee's clean-out project would be a beautiful waste of $5,000," said Cogger. "I'm willing to do the cost and safety hazards from widening and deepening the ditch want done."

He hopes to find that out next Monday. Said Southfield Administrator Robert McNutt this week, "I think the three municipalities could do the job individually and more economically."

OFFICIALS and residents of the three communities appeared at county board of determination hearings on a county drain commission Rouge No. 1 plan earlier this month. Southfield opposed the drain commission's $414,000 project. Other protesters objected to the cost and safety hazards from widening and deepening the ditch.

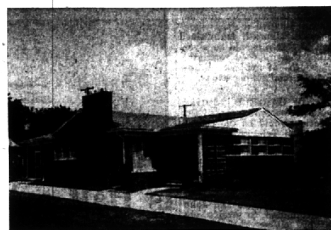

At that time the board ruled the county project was unnecessary and suggested that the three municipalities involved get together and solve the problem themselves.
