

Kimball Invades Seaholm Tomorrow Night

The scouting report on Royal Oak Kimball reads like it was mixed up with Purdue university. Seaholm's next opponent has depth, balance, good ground and passing attack and a big, mobile line.

These two schools will clash tomorrow night at Seaholm field and the Maples will be trying for their first win in five years over a Royal Oak school.

IF YOU THINK the Detroit Lions had a jinx over the Cleveland Browns, it is nothing compared to the whammy that Royal Oak wields against Seaholm.

On top of all this, Kimball has the personnel and is a well-coached team.

There were two Seaholm teams displayed against Cranbrook last week.

THE FIRST half team gave a near-brilliant display of blocking, passing, running and defense.

The second team was dull, sloppy and unable to function as a unit.

It is true that Coach Carl Lemle substituted freely during the second half since his team had a 20-0 lead and Cranbrook wasn't doing much.

But there were several times that the whole first string was in, but it wasn't the same.

SEAHOLM JUMPED on Cranbrook for two quick touchdowns in the first period and another in scoring position and then hit Steve Jacobson with a 16-yard scoring aerial with 1:50 left.

After forcing Cranbrook to punt early in the second, Seaholm moved at will and won 55 yards in five plays with fullback Sam Reeve going over from five yards out.

The Maples had one sustained drive in the third period and Jacobson went the last 30 yards for the score late in the stanza for the final tally.

SEAHOLM coaches, students and fans will get a good idea just how far the team will go in the Eastern Michigan League race tomorrow at 8 p.m. when the two teams meet.

By 10 p.m. tomorrow, they should know.

Jays Meet Ferndale Tomorrow

If Seaholm Coach Carl Lemle needs any more testimonials to Royal Oak Kimball's prowess on the football field, he can just ask Southfield Coach Monte Charles.

Charles was the first to feel the sting of the Kimball power-house this season as his team bowed, 26-0, Saturday night.

AND TOMORROW night at 8, the Jays invade Ferndale high school.

Ferndale defeated Berkley last week, 19-12, and is reported to have one of its strongest teams this year.

All of Kimball's touchdowns were made on long runs or passes.

THERE WAS nothing seriously wrong with Southfield's defense, but the offense was bottled up by a big Kimball line.

Kimball marched 60 yards the first time it had the ball and the finale came on a two-yard plunge after a 25-yard run.

Two long passes and another long run capped by a short plunge added up to 30 points for Kimball.

Steve Wolfe pashed it over with an 11-yard airtight end.

JOE KRAUSE, Baron fullback, was not out into the starting line-up until the last minute, but fine as the spark of the Barons offense, he scored three times.

A double-reverse completely baffled Oak Park as Art Tregezna's pass to Barris Armstrong covering 30 yards set up Krause's 10-yard dash early in the third period and he scored again late in the final stanza on a 55-yard dash around his own left end.

CRANBROOK Coach Fred Campbell has already forgotten his Seaholm game and he's trying to convince his gridders to do the same.

The Gridders held heavy workouts this week and will have a light session today and another tomorrow to prepare for Forest Lake academy on Saturday at 2 p.m.

They are getting over that Seaholm game, Campbell said, and are looking forward to Forest Lake.

"I THINK the boys just tried too hard against Seaholm and those two mistakes early in the game hurt us. We never recovered," he said.

He was referring to the intercepted pass early in the game and the fumble that followed a few minutes later.

Cranbrook had started to drive and was moving well through the air and on the ground when a pass was deflected off the hands of the receiver and into a defensive back's arms.

SEAHOLM WENT on to score five touchdowns and a field goal in the game.

This one was halted on their own 40-yard line by a fumble and the Maples took full advantage by moving in for another touchdown.

Forest Lake has an average team to find out what his team will do this year in the Inter-State League as a result of this game.

SENIOR MEN of the Community House at 10 a.m. on Friday, September 25, will provide their own entertainment in the form of a "Home Talent Show." There will be eight acts, including a few songs by the senior quartet. The director and writer of the script will be to remain anonymous.

H. S. Maynard, 887 Wimbeldon, Birmingham, scored an ace on the ninth hole while playing in a two-some with his wife. He had a 47 for the nine holes.

B'ham Area Men Take Top Festival Honors

DEARBORN — A 1922 Mercer Raceabout from Florida and a 1904 Packard from Michigan's heavy contingent won top honors at the ninth annual Old Car Festival in Greenfield Village last Sunday.

The Mercer, entered in the 1917-25 division, was owned by Jerry S. Foley III of Jacksonville, Fla., and the Packard, in the 1899-1916 division, was the entry of Richard Teague, 4741 West Maple, Bloomfield township.

A crowd of 26,081 witnessed the festival, largest in the event's history and also an attendance record for a single day in Greenfield Village's 30-year history. The largest previous crowd was 14,011 at the 1938 Old Car Festival.

SECOND PLACE in the 1917-25 division went to a 1922 Pierce Arrow owned by Roland B. Lyons, of Ann Arbor, with third place to a 1924 Ford Model T Coupe owned by Winfield J. Sloyter, 5584 Livermore, Troy.

In the 1899-1916 division, second place went to a 1907 Packard owned by Harry L. Ray, 9325 Riverside drive, Beverly Hills, a 1907 Duryea Buggy, entered by Anthony Krup, Rockford, Ill., was third.

A HIGHLIGHT of the festival was the presentation of a 1930 Buick Royale, owned by Charles Chayne, General Motors corporation vice-president, to Henry Ford Museum.

The gift was accepted by Dr. Donald A. Shelley, executive director of the Ford Museum, built at a cost of $43,000 (1931 dollars) for a German doctor, the big eight-cylinder car has a wheelbase of 160 inches and measures an even seven feet from windshield to radiator.

The antique car winners were accompanied by a group of mechanical performance judges were a standpoint of accuracy of restoration, general appearance and mechanical performance.

In addition to the judging and awarding contests and stunts took place throughout the afternoon, they included cranking, slow driving, coasting, balancing, drag races, and driving and windfall driving.

Along the Sidelines with Bill Arthur

"The Last Angry Man" is a book that made a minor furor on the stands a few years ago and although the author, Gerald Green, probably does not know John Kroll, local Babe Ruth League guy, the book is a perfect description of said person.

Kroll, however, is not the last angry man nor was he the first—but one thing has been ascertained through a recent conversation . . . he is angry.

As president of the local baseball league for youngsters, he is understandably upset over the number of one dollar bills now tucked in some bank.

There are only 940 of them.

Ohhhh No!

Southfield end Ned Simmons had the pass in his hands and then dropped it. The anguished look on his face was partly due to the dropped pass and partly due to the score. Southfield bowed to Royal Oak Kimball, 26-6, and was behind, 20-0, when Simmons fumbled the ball. No one felt worse than he did, however.

Birmingham Little League To Get New Ball Diamond

A fourth Little League baseball diamond will be built at Eton park at an estimated cost of nearly $1,000 following the approval of the Birmingham city commission.

The cost of the diamond will be split between the city and the Birmingham Little League with the city paying roughly two-thirds of the expense.

SHARPLY RISING populations forced the Little League to expand its program two years ago, but the expansion was so great that the city would build the diamond and build players' benches inside the home plate and pitching rubber.

Little League officials would build the dugouts and construct the dugout and outfield fencing.

WHEN LEAGUE WORKERS went around soliciting the parents of the players for funds to finish the season, less than 70 per cent contributed.

Kroll is still wondering what happened to the other 30 per cent.

But the coup de grace was yet to come.

As a possible fund-raising campaign, Kroll had contacted Nick Kerby of the Detroit Pistons to see what could be done about co-sponsoring a basketball game.

Of the 15 members of the Babe Ruth League board, five of them attended the first meeting.

IT HAS BEEN suggested that the league be turned over to the recreation department, but that bureau of city government has been unable to even care for the fields in a manner that has been satisfactory to the league.

It is soon someone who is not connected to the organization has an idea or two that can be used to raise the 4,660 bucks.

It is doubtful, however, if the money would soothe John Kroll.

He was still angry when the conversation was closed.

Here I Come—Ready Or Not

Seaholm tackle George Harris (right) help make the tackle on the Maple ball-giver Jeff Fisher an extra push as he goes carrier, but never made it as Harris stopped in his way. Seaholm went on to win, 26-0.
